CAPONE GETS 11-YEAR TERM League Council Adopts Evacuation Proposal

RESOLUTION IS OPPOSED BY JAPANESE

Recommend China and Japan Appoint Agents to Arrange Withdrawal Plan

ADJOURNMENT TAKEN

President Briand Appeals to Yoshizawa to Announce Incident Closed One

GENEVA, Oct. 24.—(UP)—The League of Nations Council, over the objections of Japan, today adopted a resolution recommending China and Japan appoint representatives to arrange details of evacuation of Japanese troops from Manchuria.

The evacuation, according to the resolution, is to come before November 16.

The vote on the resolution was 13 to 1.

Previously Japan had presented a counter proposal which was rejected 13 to 1.

The two resolutions would have been effective only by a unanimous vote.

At the afternoon session Aristide Briand, French delegate, reported how he had conferred with Ken-ichi Yoshizawa during the adjournment attempt to arrange a compromise between the Japanese attitude towards the resolution.

Yoshizawa, Briand reported, manifested a sincere desire to cooperate but said he could not act without further instructions from Tokyo. Thereafter the council proceeded to vote on the two proposals.

Yoshizawa voted for the Sze resolution and against the council resolution.

Following the vote Briand arose and explained that the council resolution "is now in the hands of the Japanese delegate who is fully acquainted with the council's desires in this matter."

Yoshizawa replied: "The questions involved are life and death problems to Japan and must be judged by facts, not ideas. Japan considered the council resolutions insufficient."

The council resolution was then tabled.

At the closing of the session, Briand paid high tribute to the United States collaboration and emphasized that the council meets again November 16. He appealed to Japan that she then be able to announce the "incident is closed and the nightmare ended."

CHARGES OF MURDER PLACED AGAINST MRS. WINNIE JUDD

STOCK MARKET SHOWS GAIN OF 1 TO 3 POINTS

Hoover-Laval Conferences Have Effect Although Trading is Light

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—(UP)—A rise of 7 per cent in steel operations in the Youngstown district for the coming week supplied the stimulus for a general advance in the stock market today. The market closed with industrials around their highs on the present movement, gains ranging to 3 points.

A strong grain market also helped sentiment in stocks. The street anticipated something constructive to result from the Hoover-Laval conferences over the week-end and this worked in favor of the market also.

Woolworth was a feature of the mercantile section, rising more than a point.

Steel common was registering a gain of more than a point near the close.

Copper shares firmed up on prospects of higher prices for the metal.

Utilities turned up. Motor shares turned about after early irregularity. Oils were featured by demand for the two standard issues, which are said to be negotiating further toward merger—Standard of California and Standard of New Jersey.

Volume was light and for a time the market was irregular. Selling dried up when the market showed resistance on the downside and short covering for over the week-end brought prices higher.

According to preliminary calculations the Dow Jones & Co. industrial average stood at 109.65, up 0.77 points, rail average 54.50, up 0.69 points and the utility average at 43.13, up 0.38 points.

Sales totaled 757,650 shares, compared with 627,550 shares last Saturday.

At the closing of the session, Briand paid high tribute to the United States collaboration and emphasized that the council meets again November 16. He appealed to Japan that she then be able to announce the "incident is closed and the nightmare ended."

U. S. C. Rally Is Cut Off In San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—(UP)—Coach Howard Jones was addressing a rally of Southern California football fans and executives of the Pacific Gas & Electric company were banqueting last night when all the lights went out.

The utility officers were all in Berkeley and were unable to do anything about it. The U. S. C. rally in San Francisco came to a standstill as Jones waited for the lights to come on.

On another floor of the U. S. C. hotel, two women groping along a corridor accidentally turned in a fire alarm.

Ten minutes later the lights went on again. Jones resumed speaking and the executives resumed banqueting. A broken cable was the official explanation.

HOOVER-LAVAL ANNOUNCEMENT EXPECTED SOON

State of World Importance Looked for As Result of Conference

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—(UP)—An announcement of world importance is expected later today as a result of the conversations between President Hoover and Premier Laval during an overnight stay at the White House.

It was thought in some quarters that this would deal in general terms with the possibility of radically reducing both reparations and war debts. A formal statement was to be issued at the White House this afternoon.

Five men sat in the historic Lincoln study on the second floor of the White House several hours last night seeking an approach to the tangled European economic situation which is retarding world recovery from the depression. They were President Hoover, Premier Laval, Secretary of State Stimson, Undersecretary of the Treasury Mills and Jacques Blot, interpreter. The conference ended at midnight.

After some preliminary talk, a statement was issued at the White House saying Mr. Hoover and Premier Laval were discussing solely policies which each of the governments could develop to expedite recovery from the world economic depression.

This indicated a disposition not to attempt to make an agreement which would foreclose other powers but rather to find common ground. France is in a position to act with regard to reducing reparations, she being the only country

Mrs. LeRoy while visiting the two girls Friday night.

"I killed them after Miss Samuelson shot me in the hand during the quarrel," she was quoted by Taylor as saying.

"I scuffled with Miss Samuelson and the gun dropped to the floor, Mrs. LeRoy hit me on the head with an ironing board. I fell to the floor. I picked up Miss Samuelson's gun. Then I shot them both."

Despite Taylor's statements, Mrs. Judd's attorney, Richard Cantillon, once the defender of William Edward Hickman, executed murderer, said she made "no statement of legal standing."

No Statement

"And she will make none until she goes to trial," he added.

Following her surrender, Mrs. Judd was taken to the Georgia street receiving hospital where a .35 calibre bullet was removed from her left hand. Bullets of the same size killed Miss Samuelson and Mrs. LeRoy.

Fearful of being detected if she appeared at a physician's office or a hospital, Mrs. Judd had suffered the painful wound for a week with only applications of "home remedies." Police surgeons said the hand was badly infected and anti toxin was administered to guard against gangrene or lockjaw.

Mrs. Judd's surrender was as unusual as it was dramatic.

Knowing that her husband, Dr. William C. Judd, Santa Monica physician, had engaged attorneys to represent her, she telephoned him several times during the day.

Arranges Meeting

She disapproved of each suggested meeting place, however, until Cantillon finally mentioned a funeral parlor operated by an old and close friend of his.

"I think that will be all right," she said over the telephone. "Send someone to meet me at Fifth and Olive street—in front of the Biltmore hotel."

This location is one of the busiest in Los Angeles and in view of hundreds of passersby and many policemen who were looking for her. She kept the appointment with David Malloy, employee of Gus Alvarez, funeral parlor owner.

"I'm a little nervous," she told Malloy, as she entered the automobile that took her to the funeral parlors. "My hand is hurting me dreadfully."

Court Notes

Burton Miller has brought suit in superior court against T. H. Peppers and A. J. Miller, doing business as the Olive Fruit company, asking judgment for $291.22 asserted to be due for oranges sold the defendants.

Harry D. Riley has appealed to the superior court from a judgment of the Santa Ana justice court in favor of the Hewes Ranch company, defendant, for costs, in a case which Riley had brought against the ranch company and Leo Barry over damage to a large window in a South Main street building of which he was lessee. The window was broken after a car driven by Barry had tried to pass a milk truck of the ranch company at Main and Myrtle streets and had jumped the curb and gone through the glass. Riley got judgment of $611 against Barry but the court ruled in favor of the ranch company.

MRS. LELA COULSON CALLED BY DEATH

Suddenly stricken after an illness of but a few days Mrs. Lela M. Coulson, 58, pioneer matron of Santa Ana died yesterday afternoon at her home on West Seventeenth street.

She is survived by her husband, Calvin L. Coulson; two sons, Dr. Kenneth R. Coulson and James T. Coulson; and one daughter, Miss Opha Coulson, all of Santa Ana; three brothers, W. H. James, Santa Ana; Lester James, Modesto, and O. G. James, San Diego; and one sister, Mrs. J. E. Armstrong, of Santa Ana.

Mrs. Coulson, who had lived here 30 years, was a member of the Christian Science church of Santa Ana and active in church circles.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 10 a. m. at the Harroll and Brown funeral home, 116 West Seventeenth street and interment will be in Fairhaven cemetery.

and fingering the bandage on a cut right index finger.

When sentence had been spoken, he gave a short nervous laugh, more like a hiccup. He seemed relieved when Defense Attorneys Fink and Ahern stepped to his side to dispute about the sentence.

The big gangster wore a pepper and salt blue suit of pinch-back effect. His flashing jewels and platinum and gold ornaments were not in evidence.

Until the moment he was called to step before the judge and hear the penalty for his decade of domination over underworld rackets that have contributed reported millions to his coffers, Capone sucked on a cough drop.

He gulped it down hurriedly when Judge Wilkerson summoned him to step to the bench.

When Judge Wilkerson ordered him to jail "forthwith," the gang leader who has been accused of cold bloodedly murdering of his enemies by the tens, seemed to sag. His thumbs twitched and he fingered his cut finger. Finally after gulping a couple of times, he forced a smile as his attorneys, Michael Ahern and Albert Fink came to his side.

Fink addressed the judge: "Your honor, won't you show a little leniency to our client?" he asked.

"I think I will adhere to my ruling," Judge Wilkerson said.

"Goodbye, you did your best," Capone said to his attorneys. He shook hands with both Fink and Ahern and then was led to Marshal H. C. Laubenthal's office preparatory to going to a cell, the first one in Chicago he has ever occupied during his 10 years of heading the rackets.

Marshal Laubenthal said he was prepared to take Capone to Leavenworth penitentiary tonight or early tomorrow, if the government officials so order.

In the meantime, Capone was put into a cell that ordinarily is used for young criminals, built especially to keep youthful offenders from contact with hardened criminals in the regular federal building "bull pen."

Capone marched behind the heavy screen without saying a word and sat down alone to await the government's pleasure.

to say on the eve of the Hoover-Laval discussion that he would be willing to see the entire debt cancelled provided all reparations were likewise wiped off the slate. It is too late for another moratorium now, Borah said.

"If reparations were cancelled," he said, "I would be perfectly willing, in my humble capacity, to advocate the cancellation of our debts."

Another vital discussion, expected to deal principally with disarmament, will take place tonight and tomorrow when after luncheon with Secretary of Treasury Mellon today, Laval goes to Woodley, the home of Secretary Stimson, to stay overnight. Stimson plans a star dinner. This will be followed by a stroll Sunday morning through the wooded slopes of the beautiful estate when the two men can talk freely. It will be the last important conversation for Laval leaves for New York Sunday night or Monday morning to return to France.

Senator Borah will be at the Stimson dinner tonight.

Laval had indicated a desire to take Borah away into a corner for private talk, but in view of Borah's statement yesterday and Laval's subsequent reaction to it, there was some speculation as to whether this interview would transpire. French correspondents, after informing Laval of Borah's utterances, quoted the French premier as saying he did not desire "to exchange politics with Senator Borah, or to discuss revision of the Treaty of Versailles."

They met at the White House dinner Thursday night, Borah having been invited an hour and a half before the dinner began. They came away each enthusiastic in his praise of the other. Far apart they may be on some questions but they understood each other at first sight—both are frank, outspoken, and their differences do not diminish their respect for each other.

As a tribute to the importance attached to his opinions in France, the French correspondent traveling with Laval sought a special press conference with Borah at which they put frank questions and received frank answers. Borah told them this country could not guarantee security for France or any nation, that disarmament could succeed only if Europe adjusted such differences as have arisen over the Polish corridor, upper Silesia and the partition of Hungary. He insisted that Versailles treaty must be revised and Russia recognized before real peace can be obtained.

THRILLS SCHEDULED AT MARTIN AIRPORT

Thrills for the spectators will be featured on the program being arranged for Eddie Martin's Airport tomorrow. Harry Booth, world's champion parachute jumper, will head the program and the guessing contest scheduled for last Sunday will be staged this week.

Booth had planned to make a jump last week but was prevented by unfavorable weather conditions. It was planned that the person guessing nearest to the height from which he made his leap would receive two tickets for plane rides as a reward.

In addition to Booth's parachute jump which is scheduled for 3:30 p. m., several of the pilots at the airport will give exhibitions of blind flying, using the airplane recently equipped with blind flying instruments, as a training ship for the airport and a group of students will stage an exhibition of aerobatic flying.

BABY WINNER IS MEMBER OF LARGE FAMILY

Lee Wendler Haven, winner of the recent voting contest conducted under auspices of The Register, Neely's and Fox theater, is the youngest of 10 children of whom Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Haven proudly boast.

Haven is president of the Haven Seed company of this city, and for more than a score of years has made Santa Ana his home. With his family he now resides at San Onofre, south of San Clemente, where he operates several hundred acres of land in connection with the seed business of which he is the head.

Lee is the youngest grandson of Mrs. E. M. Haven, of 421 East Chestnut street, who is proud of having 39 hearty and healthy grandchildren, the oldest of which has but a little more than turned his majority. One other grandchild has died. She also has two great-grandchildren.

On the paternal side of his home, young Lee Wendler Haven can boast a somewhat notable history, as the first Haven family emigrated to New England in 1643 from the south of England, it is reported. Some of his ancestors served in the Revolutionary war in Washington's army. Later others migrated westward to hew out homes in the forests of Ohio and Michigan, and finally the Pacific coast claimed them.

POLICE SEARCH THREE STATES FOR PRISONERS

McGrath, Selbert and Stoddard ran out of the shoe factory where they were employed.

The four convicts scaled the ladder, swung it up and over, and started to descend. White ran toward them but was shot down. McGrath and Weirman seized his pistol and riot gun.

The desperadoes then divided in pairs. McGrath and Weirman seized the car of Russell Senath and drove off toward the Delaware river bridge between Trenton and Morristown. A prison guard, commanding a machine driven by Dr. Walter Carroll, prison physician, gave chase.

Stoddard and Selbert, meantime, had seized the car of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Fretz, and headed for the Brunswick Pike.

McGrath and Weirman sped to Oxford Valley, Carroll and the guard trailing them. One of the convicts tried to fire at the pursuers through the rear window of the car, but just then the other lost control of the auto and it crashed into a tree. They fled into the woods.

State troopers were summoned soon and surrounded the men.

As Campbell advanced on the prisoners he was shot in the head. An instant later another trooper killed McGrath.

Weirman, seeing escape was impossible, turned the riot gun on himself.

CIGARET BLAMED FOR BOY'S DEATH

A cigaret was the indirect cause of death of Wallace Link, 20, Anaheim youth, who died Thursday in the Orange county hospital of injuries received in a crash September 29.

The coroner's jury, in an inquest over the body today at the Hilgenfeld Funeral parlors in Anaheim, found that death was due to lockjaw which developed after young Link had been injured. The jury also found that the driver of the car in which Link was riding lost control of the machine when he attempted to light a cigaret.

The accident occurred at the intersection of Ball and Magnolia roads. The car ran off the road and overturned in a ditch.

There ARE Jobs for Men, and Trade for Merchants!

Harder to get, true, and there are new ways of getting them!

The day has gone when a man said, "I'm a carpenter; I'm a salesman; I'm a mechanic; I'm a clerk; I have good references, etc., etc!" and received attention in his quest for work.

The day has gone when a merchant said, "I have a store; I'm a local citizen; you owe it to your city to patronize me!" and so on.

These are times of a different flavor. There ARE jobs and there IS trade for merchants. But they're harder to get, and the methods of getting must be adapted to the spirit of the times.

There will be NO RETURNING to old methods, old standards of trade, or old status of an employee. Men and merchants should forget the past, START ALL OVER, study the motives that cause people to act TODAY, and get busy!—get busy!

It's here for you—but you've got to go out and get it!

Federal immigration officers who were stopping cars at the northern entrance of San Clemente last night had to leap for their lives when a car driven by A. G. Jones, Los Angeles, crashed into one operated by William B. Schwartz, of San Diego.

Jones and Bill Ritzer, a companion, suffered serious cuts on the face, while Mrs. Jones suffered from shock. The three victims were taken to the San Clemente hospital and clinic for treatment.

The Schwartz car was being examined by the immigration inspectors when the crash occurred. Schwartz was not hurt. Both machines were badly damaged.

The immigration officers are operating a 24-hour shift on the Coast highway in search of smuggled Chinese.

Mrs. Forsberg was crossing the street walking with Louis Valencia, of 801 East First street, at the time of the accident. She was taken to the hospital by A. H. McPhee.

20 Year Old Auto Still Running

Probably the oldest automobile in Orange county in good running condition is today proudly displayed alongside Auburn's new eight-cylinder cars at the showrooms of Paul Clark, Third and Sycamore streets, local Auburn dealer.

The old Auburn was presented by Daniel Halliday, retired rancher of this city to Clark this week. Halliday used the car for about 10 years and in 1921 the last trip of any significance was to Yosemite valley. Since that time the car has not been used but has been stored at Halliday's ranch near Olive.

Of the tires which had not been pumped up for years, three held air when inflated with original tubes and are holding air today. Many local motor enthusiasts who have ridden in the old car expressed surprise at its pep and power.

Shelton was injured when the motorcycle on which he was riding collided with an automobile driven by Fred Davis of Santa Ana.

Plan To Avoid Duplication In Relief Measures

Plans for a more complete coordination of efforts in handling the unemployment situation in Santa Ana were discussed yesterday afternoon attended by members of the executive committee of the Citizens' Unemployment Relief committee, county officials and directors of the Community Chest.

Formal action on the program outlined at yesterday's session will be taken Tuesday when the same group holds another conference, according to Herbert Rankin, chairman of the citizen's organization.

According to Rankin, plans were discussed for the best method of preventing duplication of efforts on the part of the three welfare agencies, his committee, the county and Community Chest. These plans, he said, were held in abeyance until completion of the Community Chest drive.

Under the proposal to be acted upon Tuesday the city unemployment survey will be immediately completed and re-registering of all unemployed men in the city will be made. This re-registration is necessary according to Rankin to bring the present records, now kept in the Community Chest employment office, up to date.

SANTA ANA'S UNEMPLOYED SCORE DOUBLE INCOMES AT MASS MEETING LAST NIGHT

If there were any doubts about the seriousness of the unemployment situation in Santa Ana, or if the Santa Ana Emergency Unemployment committee underestimated its job of staving off hunger here during the winter months, all such doubts were hastily removed last night when 225 men and women, out of work, appeared for the first of a series of unemployment mass meetings at the city hall.

The meeting was called "to talk things over" by the Odd Job sub-committee of the emergency unemployment committee headed respectively by Reeves Aylmore and J. W. Estes.

The meeting was to the point. Men want work and there was no mistaking their earnestness on that point. Several made short talks, others gave suggestions, but the vast majority were present just to find out if anything could be done for them this winter.

Plan to Canvass City
After calling the meeting to order, Aylmore told of the plans of the committee, which is working, he said in an attempt to see that some work was given to every man and woman in the city some time. He declared that the city was being solicited in an effort to find work for the unemployed and that he wanted to work out a system of canvassing the city "soliciting jobs from persons who can afford to help out at this time."

"But I wasn't expecting this many. Next time we have a meeting I think I'll rent a theater," he said. It was clear to see the committee was not prepared to find so many at the meeting.

Cards were passed out to all who wanted jobs. Every card was taken, more than 200.

After the collection of cards, the meeting was turned over to the unemployed. Many suggested plans that they thought would aid the situation.

Object to Double Incomes
Chief among these was a plan suggested by Roland Bohannon, to the effect that in the city and county officer where married women are employed, who have husbands working elsewhere making as good or more money than they, a cut should be made, relieving these women of their jobs, and making room for some of the unemployed.

His suggestion was met with applause from the house. "There are lots of people like this that are not affected by these times," Bohannon said. "Because their combined incomes are far more than they need to live on."

Aylmore also talked on this subject. He declared that a list was being compiled now of all county and city offices where married women are drawing good money and who have husbands with jobs and declared that not only would an attempt be made to cut these women from their positions, but that the plan also would be pushed in big corporation offices and in other offices about the city.

Some of these combined salaries run as high as $500 per month, he declared. The situation is particularly bad in Santa Ana, the speaker said, calling attention to one case where a husband has a big job in a financial institution and his wife a good job at the court house.

Suggest Rent Cuts
Another suggestion was made that the landlords of the city be asked to combine to cut rentals. A claim was made that some landlords were still getting wartime prices for their houses.

A suggestion that a set wage scale be made for the unemployed when jobs were offered, was well received by the gathering.

Mrs. Katherine Marquis, the only woman at the meeting who spoke, declared that last year men were paid $4.50 per day for their work. This year, she declared they could get no more than $2.50.

She said she had gone to the city council asking for work for herself and husband in order to sustain two small children. "The council said they couldn't do anything for me and sent me to the board of supervisors. The supervisors sent me to the chamber of commerce and they sent me to the unemployment bureau here," she said.

Plan Gardens
Aylmore asked the unemployed if they would like to raise a garden this winter on lots to be furnished, with free water and some 50 of them declared they would. Their names were taken. He also declared that plans had been formulated for the cultivating of a big farm, on a community basis and asked all who would like to join in this project, to communicate with him.

T. N. Finley, one of the unemployed, declared that there are a number of city employees who have held their jobs for years and have, in that time, been able to save money "for a rainy day." "Well that rainy day is here now," he said. "The city should lay off these men and let them live for awhile on what they have saved and give the jobs to the men out of work," he said.

Finley declared that he was working now, receiving $35 per month. Out of this, he declared, he was paying $25 per month for his home and he and his wife were living on the balance. "And if you think you can't do it, you're just kidding yourself," he told his audience.

Small Success
Some idea of the destitute circumstances of some of the men was revealed in the cards they turned in. Many with families of three and four said they would be satisfied with $35 to $45 per month—at eight hours a day.

One card was read where a man with two children reported he and his family could live on $90 per month. When the card was read there was a buzz throughout the place. "He don't want a job, he wants a position," someone yelled, indicating that the man was asking for too much.

The majority asked from $50 to $70 per month for their families.

Hold Dinner Party
Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Graham and son, of Los Angeles, cousins of C. O. Graham; Glenn Graham's mother and his sister, Miss Nina Graham, and San Fernando, and Mrs. Glenn Graham's sister, of Los Angeles, were entertained at a family dinner party held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Graham.

Entertain Guests
Mr. and Mrs. Z. D. Crane have been entertaining at their house guests, Mrs. Crane's sister, Mrs. Mary Piper, and aunt, Mrs. Don Weddle, eastern visitors, and Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Crane took Mrs. Weddle for her first trip to Alhambra, where they visited Mrs. Crane's son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Whitacker. Thursday Mrs. Weddle and Mrs. Piper went to Catalina in company with their relatives, Mrs. Irwin and Mrs. William Thompson and the two women have now gone to Santa Ana to visit other relatives.

Birthday Observed
Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ruoff entertained with an anniversary party in their home observing the birthday of the son, Norman Ruoff, of Garden Grove. The dinner table was beautifully decorated. The birthday cake centered the table. Those present included the members of the two families and were Mrs. and Mrs. Norman Ruoff and their daughter, Norma Ruoff; the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ruoff; their son, Edward Ruoff, and daughters, Mildred and Jeanne Ruoff.

Following the dinner party Mr. and Mrs. Norman Ruoff went to Los Angeles, where they were to be guests at a "hard times" party.

DAMAGE SUITS FOR SUPERIOR COURT MONDAY

Superior courts of Orange county are scheduled to continue hearing the series of damage cases which have been occupying much of their attention during the past week. When the courts convene on Monday there will be four such cases scheduled for trial.

Mr. and Mrs. Madison T. Menton, of Cudahy, will seek $1500 damages from Dr. J. L. Beebe, of Anaheim, in a case based on the death of their son after an operation.

Milford W. Dahl, son of Edward W. Dahl, residing near Santa Ana, will seek $5000 damages from Perel Barnett and Charles Spotts, of Orange, as a result of injuries received when he fell from the defendants' truck at Fourth and French streets on July 3, 1930. According to the complaint the boy was riding on the top of a pile of boxes, which fell off when the car turned from Fourth to French street.

Jose Lozano, bringing suit through Carmen Lozano, is scheduled to seek $5200 damages from Ruth and Ralph Boone, Mannie Kaplan and Sam Solotrow as a result of injuries received when a car driven by Ruth Boone is alleged to have struck him on November 3, 1929. The complaint said Lozano was a pedestrian and that the Boone car hit him in trying to avoid colliding with Solotrow's car and trailer in charge of Mannie Kaplan, parked carelessly on Ocean avenue west of Garden Grove.

In another case Harry C. Miller is scheduled to seek judgment for $24,254 from Julius Schilling and P. J. Wombolt for injuries received when his car and the Schilling car, driven by Wombolt, are asserted to have collided at Ball road and Magnolia avenue on October 20, 1930.

SAYS NATION MUST PLAN WEALTH DISTRIBUTION AND ACCEPT WORLD LEADERSHIP

The American people were indicted for their indifferent attitude in face of the challenge of the present day economic and political crisis over the world in an address by Dr. O. W. E. Cook, head of the department of international relations at the University of Southern California, as the last of a series of four lectures before open luncheon meetings of the Knights of the Round Table.

"Unless the people of this nation regain a driving objective in defense of ideals and unless the nation itself accepts its responsibilities internationally, we are due for a change effected by violent methods rather than by intelligent planning," the speaker warned.

He affirmed his faith in the ability of the American people, but he said that they would first have to be aroused by a new enthusiasm, secondly that they must evolve some equitable distribution of wealth, and third that they would have to accept, as a nation, a position of world leadership and responsibility through official participation in the World Court and the League of Nations.

Highlights of his address follow:

"The place the United States ought to occupy and work for, I have outlined under three heads. First, there is a lack of objective or at least a lack of compelling objective among the people of the United States. I feel it is true that we do not know where we are going.

Psychology For Peace

"A type of psychology was developed under war impetus because during the days of the war, we did unite ourselves together to win the war. I am at a loss this moment to understand why if a war psychology to win the war is justified, under those conditions, why the same type of psychology to win and make effective the peace is not just as mandatory.

"We are losing out in the midst of the day that we need definite goals and direction, and need a goal that is worthy of us—we are losing by reason of the fact that nothing seems to go deep enough to really demand and command the energies of our people.

"I think two forces are to blame for it, the church and education. The church has not been definite in its attitude toward which she has called us. Religion has divided us up into so many different divisions, separating us when it ought to have united us. Education has done the same thing.

"One of the outstanding factors is the fact that America has not had, there does not seem to have appeared on the horizon something that furnishes us with great ideal. We are not sure that we believe in our democracy. Let me tell you frankly if the people have lost confidence in our democracy, it is a loss that is irreparable for the sake of America, and what it ought to be.

Have Faith in Democracy

"I haven't lost it, and I still can feel in my blood a real solid, sound, moving faith in democracy. It is still enough of a challenge. I think you will find also one of the evidences of that in the attitude toward prohibition.

"I am not a pessimist about it. I believe that 60 to 75 percent of the American people are dry. I believe in some sections a higher percentage is dry. Still by reason of the newspapers, 90 percent of them (with the exception of The Register), and many other factors in our political life are the reason why we find it so difficult to take hold of the problem of prohibition and make effective the prohibitory laws.

"It may be that we shall lose our opportunity by reason of the dallying that is going on on the part of those who should direct the proper and practical effectiveness of the prohibition laws.

"I believe very strongly with Professor Irving Fisher of Yale that one of the largest factors in our favor in the world conditions financially by reason of the fact that we have prohibition laws. I think he is right. We are saving from five to six billion dollars per year as a nation.

Better Distribution Needed

"I am not a socialist, although I have some very strong socialist tendencies, and I am perfectly willing to say that I believe if America is to persist in a position of world leadership, that something has got to be done to make possible a larger division of the spoils of the economic system and its greater distribution among a larger number of the people.

"According to the report of the income tax, 98 per cent of the income tax was paid by three per cent of the people. There is something wrong in a condition in a nation in which that condition in this day, 1931, is possible.

"In the realm of cotton, 36 men made something like $500,000,000 last year. Something like 5000 who are in the business failed to make anything. That situation, men, is absolutely impossible of continuation, if, economically, we are ever going to get anywhere, to establish our nation upon a solid, economic basis.

"Dr. Glenn Frank in this morning's editorial, said he was absolutely convinced that as long as the leaders of our economic machinery demanded profits above service that there was simply nothing to do but let the whole machine go to the wall, because, said he, we have come to the place where we demand service.

"I think I have mentioned before the article written by Dr. Beard, one of the keenest economic leaders in the United States. He makes this suggestion, that there be called by the action of the President and the Congress of the United States, what he calls a national economic council, that that council take as its responsibility, the co-ordination of the fundamental interests of the nation. They should do for economics and industry the same thing that we have done for politics, or for religion or for education or for any of the other fundamental necessities of our lives.

Focus Leadership

"We have been fundamentally individualists. The day of individualism is over against social control and social responsibility is passing, if it hasn't passed. There is the reason why we should call in the representatives of 100 of the leading industries, the basic industries of the country, and place in their hands the generalship that is needed, and find out why and how we can meet the matter from the service standpoint.

"There would also be called in the agricultural leaders, and do you know anything in which there is greater need of organization? What is true in the agricultural line is also true in the housing business and the building trades.

"Then there is the problem of marketing, which is most acute for most of those in the agricultural business, and those also in the basic industries themselves. Under the national economic conference or council, the agricultural expert and the housing expert and the marketing expert, then we would have attacked at last the problem of economics within the United States, in keeping with the intelligence which we have at our command.

Alternative Is Violence

"Maybe we are coming to it. If we can't, then let us make up our minds, we will have something that is going to be violent, if we haven't the brain power to do it by any other method. I feel that it is true. I think the United States will have to face these problems.

"The United States in the 150 years of her life, with the exception of the first few years, has been able to live an isolated life, isolated from the rest of the nations of the world. Up to 1893 we were able to keep up that isolation pretty well. In 1893, by reason of the Spanish-American war, we changed our policy, and by reason of the activities in the Far East in 1898 and the Open Door policy, we entered into the Far East in a new way, and have never been able to get out again, and some of us try to get away from our responsibility there.

"Up to 1917 we had never broken away to the degree we did then to win the war. Personally, from everything I can read, if we had had the generalship which we might have had, and if there were not also certain other complications, which we did have in the President and others, (although I am a great admirer of President Wilson), if it had been handled in a more statesmanlike fashion, we probably would not have needed to get into the war. It will cost us $100,000,000,000, according to Calvin Coolidge, who is known to be rather conservative along lines of finance. We broke over and got into the war, and entered into the world affairs. Through the work of Mr. Wilson, we established the League of Nations, and later on, there came into being the World court.

War Risk Imminent

"In both of these highly important factors, the United States has taken on distinct responsibility. It was in 1920, by action of our Congress and Senate, we deserted Mr. Wilson, deserted the world in the time of its need, and from that day to this we have been running the risk of world war. It never was more imminent than it is at this time.

"We have not been playing the game with the forces that are most powerful for the keeping of world peace. And had the United States been assuming her responsibility in the League of Nations, there is no question in my mind we would not have the situation in Manchuria. Some of us have been there, and we know the way the thing has been simmering for the past two or three years, that for months we have seen that there would come a crisis in Manchuria. Why is it that nations have to wait until the dog or horse is stolen to look the door? Why is it that we cannot co-operate with the world? "We are not in the World court or in the League of Nations. We have not signed the optional clause, have never even thought of it—and still 35 of the nations, including the five most important ones—England, France, Germany, Italy and Japan have signed it. In other words, we simply have to admit the whole fact, we have not been co-operating with the world for the bringing in of a better way. Then not only that, but as regards the international situation economically, we have not been doing our part.

U. S. and France Powerful

"The United States at the present time has in her vaults four and a half billions of gold dollars. France has a little over two billion. In other words, about seven of the eleven billions of gold reserve in the world is in the hands of United States and France. Why is it that the U. S. is not the most prosperous nation in the world? It is simply this, because you cannot make money count, and do its duty unless it is in the process of moving. It is the movement of money, the circulation of money, the passing of it and the transferring of it that gives it worth and gives it meaning and makes for prosperity.

"Realizing the fact that the United States and France, possibly at this hour, two nations that own and hold more than one-half of the gold reserve of the world are sitting down talking together, I hope Mr. Hoover will say something. Because Monsieur Laval needs to be told some things, and largely because of the fact that the French Republic and the American Republic, from the standpoint of economics, can do anything that they determine.

"We could tie up Japan in a moment if we wanted to. It might be a good threat to give her. Although I happen to know that Japan is not by any means all to blame for the condition, I should say about 75 percent to blame. I mean the war department and the general staff and not the premier of Japan are responsible. The same thing is true in France, the French people are not to blame—they are not the ones who have the chance to make foreign policy. I am sorry to say that the foreign policy of France is made by the general staff and the newspapers. That is true.

Great Opportunity

"There is one other factor. The United States is facing not only this demand for co-operation in the same way as co-operation in economics, co-operation from the standpoint of the various activities of the League of Nations and all that is connected with it, but there is coming next year, the opportunity that has developed with the possible exception of the peace conference. The peace conference presented probably the greatest single challenge to the making over of the world on the new basis, that has ever faced mankind—I am sorry to say it was largely lost.

"Next February there is to meet in the city of Geneva a world congress for disarmament. The purposes back of it are national security, and I know of nothing that is more important than in some way the United States of America should step right up and say we are willing to assume leadership in disarmament.

"One of the reasons why we can do this is because we are freed from any kind of national danger or international danger. If we are willing to carry on, my feeling is that there is no question but what the world is ready to follow.

Security From Disarmament

"I know of nothing that would make possible the security of the world sooner than real disarmament. We have had the beginnings of disarmament along lines of peace, but we must now have it along lines of army and air force. Whether we are going to have it or not is going to depend almost entirely upon the leadership of the United States.

"Don't forget also that one of the reasons why things have happened within the past few days and weeks in Manchuria is because the group of militarists in Japan have determined that if possible they are going to fight the possibility of the success of the disarmament conference. One of the reasons why things have happened over there is because the peace movement was moving too rapidly in Japan for their own sake.

"In other words, the United States has certain factors within her own borders. We have got to have an enthusiasm for something that is worthy of us, something that is big enough to lift us, something that is going to challenge the manhood and womanhood of us, and not live the dilapidated, half-hearted goal-less way in which so many of Americans are living today.

Way to Move Forward

"As regards our economic problem, we shall have to put into effect something that has in it the real elements of a distribution of wealth of the nation and of the world more equitably, and as regards the international affairs, we shall have to show ourselves willing to co-operate with the economic forces of the world. We shall have to unite with forces such as the League of Nations and the World Court, and be willing to take our place, the place that belongs to us by virtue of our tremendous wealth, because of our freedom from any other factors that face other nations. England might have done it before two or three weeks ago, but she cannot do it today because her position of leadership in the world is challenged.

"We can do it. We are probably going to move forward, but we shall have to recognize that this is a world in which no one nation can live as a nation without co-operation with others, and under a sense of that responsibility and belief in our own people.

BIBLE TEACHER

Dr. Carl S. Knopf, shown here, holds the chair of Biblical literature in the school of religion at the University of Southern California, and will speak at the First Methodist church here Sunday at 7 p. m. His topic will be "The Bible Looks at Youth." Recently he won his Ph. D. at Yale in the field of Archaeology.

W. C. T. U. PLANS CAMPAIGNS FOR 1932 ELECTIONS

Deploping the action of the American Legion and the American Federation of Labor in seeking liquor law changes, and pledging support only for dry candidates in the 1932 elections, the forty-ninth annual convention of the Southern California Women's Temperance Union came to an end at Long Beach yesterday.

Disappointment at the attitude of the Legion and the labor group was expressed in resolutions adopted by the convention.

One resolution strongly condemned newspapers which "constantly smear their pages with misleading or false wet propaganda." Such papers were classed as public enemies. Some newspapers, however, are living up to their opportunities by using their columns to raise the standards of public opinion, the resolution said.

The convention approved enactment of a law which would provide for federal supervision of motion picture production.

Support Disarmament

Officials were instructed to send a telegram to President Hoover pledging support for reduction of armaments at the Geneva conference.

Plans for political activity of the union during the important campaigns next year were made. Regional conferences will arrange support for dry candidates. The political work will curtail the convention proceedings next year, the gathering to last only two days instead of four, it was announced.

YOUTH ACQUITTED OF LIQUOR COUNT

A jury composed entirely of women late yesterday returned a verdict of not guilty in the case of John Meyer, Santa Ana youth, charged with sale of intoxicating liquor.

The verdict came after a strong plea made to the jury by the defendant's brother, Attorney N. D. Meyer, in which he strongly attacked the sheriff's method of obtaining evidence, the use of undercover agents.

Meyer was one of the 20 arrested by the sheriff in a county wide liquor raid in August. He was charged with selling one pint of liquor to an undercover agent working for the sheriff.

BIBLE AUTHORITY TO BE HERE TOMORROW

An outstanding speaker who is regarded as an authority on the Bible and understands the public mind of today will be welcomed at the First Methodist church here tomorrow and will speak at 7 p. m. on "The Bible Looks at Youth." The speaker is Dr. Carl S. Knopf, of the University of Southern California.

Dr. Knopf, who recently secured his Ph. D. at Yale university, holds the chair of Biblical literature in the school of religion at the University of Southern California.

In their leadership, we can go forward, and I cannot but believe that with some at least of the leaders that we have, we shall show ourselves worthy of the new day and to assume the new responsibilities.

COURT ACTION ON COUNTY FAIR DEBTS PLANNED

Suits totaling approximately $9000 will be filed against members of the Orange County Fair association by Harry Lake, Garden Grove, president of the association, to whom all claims have been assigned, according to meager information gathered here today.

The decision to take court action against association members, who paid $10 each for membership in the organization, was reached at a meeting held Thursday night in the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce office, according to members of the association who attended. Lake, in whose name the actions will be brought, denied knowledge of the action taken, saying that he had not attended the session. Other persons present said that a definite decision had not been reached but that it was probable that a decision to file the suits would be reached at a meeting scheduled for Monday night.

According to information received, the Orange County Fair association had debts totaling $75,000, accumulated during the years the organization has been operating the annual county fair. Of this amount, Lake shouldered approximately $50,000, including a large bill due his lumber company in Garden Grove. The balance of the indebtedness, it was indicated, would be charged to the members.

There remains an unpaid balance of approximately $9000, according to a member of the association who did not wish to be quoted, and at the meeting this amount was decided to assign all claims to Lake, who will file suit against association members who had not yet paid the amount demanded of them. It is said that the pro rata amounts to be paid will be about $62 per member but suit is being brought on the basis of $100 each to defray court costs.

George Kellogg, Yorba Linda, rancher, said to be the leader in the move to secure payment of the $9000 debt could not be reached this morning. Many of the men involved have paid their $62 and will not be involved in the court action.

Former Resident Dies In Oregon

News of the death of Harvey L. Bosworth, of Beerton, Ore., who had been a resident of Santa Ana for several years until he moved north last June, was received here today by relatives. Bosworth was employed as a construction foreman while in Santa Ana.

He leaves a sister, Mrs. Hugh Gerrard, and brother-in-law, T. F. Cruzen, in Santa Ana. Other survivors are his widow, a daughter, two sisters and his mother, all in Oregon.

It's great to realize that we have one half of the world's gold supply in this country, isn't it?

Of course, I don't know where it is—except what Doc Howe put in my back teeth—but it's not necessary for you and me and the other income tax dodgers to know much about World economics, anyway.

All we need to remember is one point about Orange County economics:—

Your dollar today will buy about $2 worth—if you spend it today. If you save it and wait for "good times," it get back into full swing, it will then buy only $1 worth.

Where's the percentage in saving it?

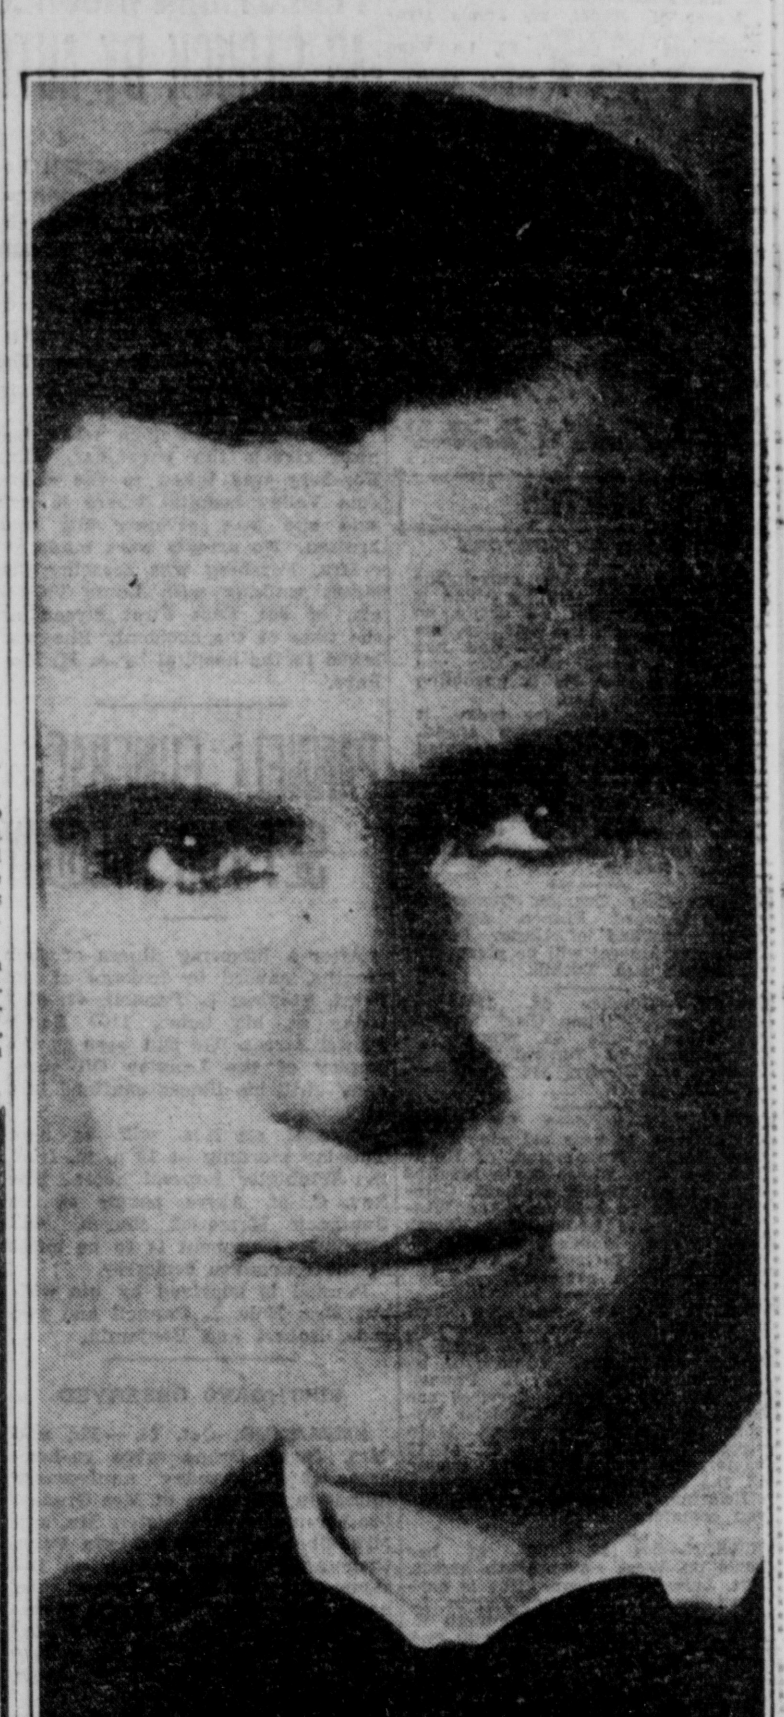

I don't know where you can spend today's dollar and get greater value in freedom from labor and responsibility than when you spend it for Sanitary Laundry Service.

Soft water — Ivory Soap — plenty of both — a real sense of responsibility — a determination to please—and a scale of prices much lower than you expect.

INTERESTING CHARACTERS IN BROKEN DISHES

When the Santa Ana Community Players present Martin Flair's comedy play, "Broken Dishes" at the Ebell clubhouse October 29, 30 and 31, the theatergoers of Santa Ana will be introduced to two of the most sympathetic and likeable characters that have been portrayed in the years that the community productions have been offered, according to Marian Helen Williams, who is directing the play.

These characters are Cyrus Bumpstead, played by Frank Lansdown and his daughter, Elaine, enacted by Pauline Parks.

"Cyrus is an example of monumental patience and good nature," she said. "His characterization on the stage is that of a man whose desire for harmony and peace has been mistaken for weakness by all except his daughter Elaine. In the midst of continual bickering by his wife and elder daughters, his disposition remains unruffled."

The part of the nagging wife is taken by Estelle Card Beeman. Myra and Mabel, the elder daughters, are portrayed by Jean Worthington Miller and Marian Parsons.

The character of Chester, played by Warren Fletcher, whom Mrs. Bumpstead has built up her mind as a long lost love, who became rich, is a fabulous figure in the play. Chester turns out to be a scamp who has spent most of his time in jail. When Cyrus tries to conceal this from his wife, he rises to his best dramatic moment.

For the romantic element, the poor but honest Bill Clark in love with Elaine is portrayed by Gene Olsen. Edwin Ebbel takes the part of Sam Green. Elton Deupree characterizes the Rev. Dr. Stump and Peter Rass enacts the role of Quinn, the detective.

THAT MAY BE THE REASON

It looks as if father has to wash the dishes and that may account for the broken crockery from which the Community Players comedy production, "Broken Dishes" gets its name. The play, opening the fall season, will be given October 29, 30 and 31 in the Ebell auditorium. Members of the cast, left to right, standing, are Marian Parsons, Frank Lansdown, Estelle Card Beeman and Gene Olsen. Seated are Jean Worthington Miller and Pauline Parks.

SCHOOL HEADS PLAN UNIFORM ACCOUNTING

Development of a uniform accounting system for high schools of Orange county is a project on which the High School Principals association had embarked today. Use of such a scheme would make it possible for the school to compare their figures on the same basis.

At the last meeting of the association, held at the Green Cat cafe here Wednesday night, a committee headed by M. G. Jones, principal of the Huntington Beach high school and including Jack Malcom, principal of the San Juan Capistrano high school, reported on its studies to date regarding a plan for uniform budgeting. The report dealt with the question of uniform accounting practices and was based on information secured from each high school in the county, on how expenses are itemized. Jones and his committee received approval of their report and were asked to develop an accounting classification dictionary which would make uniform accounting systems possible. Each school then would charge the same items under the same headings. The committee will report at the next meeting, to be held here on November 18.

It is hoped that the program eventually will extend throughout the state.

Says Determination Is Requisite Of Divine Healing

"I you wish to be healed you must have a determination that rises above popular ideas of ethics and propriety," asserted Evangelist John E. Ford Thursday night at the North Main street tabernacle. "We must lay aside all fear—fear of ourselves, fear of others, and fear that Jesus may not or does not heal. Jesus hears the cry of the humblest person who seeks sincerely and confidently. We cannot wait to make ourselves better, for only He who made us in His image in the beginning can restore in us that image, as well as restore our health."

"But the restoration of the soul to purity and the body to health can take place only as we cease to cherish sin in our lives and to disobey God's commandments, regardless of the difficulties and reverses which may come to us." Sunday night Evangelist Ford will speak on the topic, "Will the Jews be rulers of the new earth? Will any gentiles ever be admitted?"

CLASSIC HOUR ARRANGED FOR STATION KREG

With the increased enthusiasm evinced in Santa Ana for classical music over the radio, station KREG has been increasing this type of program. Tonight, for the first time, the studio will present a full hour of selected classics under direction of Bert May. The program will start at 7 o'clock and continue until 8 p. m.

May, in arranging his program of electrical transcriptions, has taken the best works of the best composers and played and sung by outstanding artists and with them as material has arranged a presentation that should please the most critical taste.

One of the outstanding numbers to be presented during this hour will be the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin, featuring a chorus and full symphony orchestra under direction of Albert Coates. This transcription was made in Europe. The symphony orchestra directed by Coates will also play the prelude to the third act of Lohengrin.

Marion Talley, outstanding soprano, will be heard on the program in two numbers, singing "Cape Nome" from the opera "Rigoletto," and "A Little Voice I Hear," from the "Barber of Seville."

Two numbers by the International Concert orchestra, "Beautiful Night," barcarole from "Tales of Hoffman," and Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," will also be presented.

Among other artists to be heard on this program will be Lawrence Tibbett, California's own baritone with the Metropolitan Opera, singing the "Toreador Song" from "Carmen" and the "Te Deum" from "Tosca." Tibbett will be accompanied by the Metropolitan Opera chorus and orchestra.

WILL BROADCAST CHURCH SERVICES

Services of the First Congregational and First Baptist churches are scheduled for broadcast over KREG tomorrow night from 8:30 to 9 o'clock with the Smokey Mountain Boys, old-time entertainers.

'UKULELE KID' TO JOIN KREG GROUP

Berkey Weaver, "Ukulele Kid," formerly of Pittsburg, Pa., now of Santa Ana, will be heard over station KREG Monday night from 8:30 to 9 o'clock with the Smokey Mountain Boys, old-time entertainers.

The "Ukulele Kid" is well known in Santa Ana and at the beaches and has many friends who will be glad to tune in and hear his program.

Station KREG To Give Test Program

In response to a request from many "DX" listeners, station KREG will broadcast a test program early tomorrow morning. This broadcast will be known as the "Special Night Owl Program" and will go on the air at 1 a. m. and continue until 2:30 a. m.

Last week a test program was repeated and verified from as far east as Boulder, Colo., and it is expected that scores of reports will be received from this test.

Later in the morning Joe Ringland and Art Cannon will broadcast a program by direct wire from the Tustin high school auditorium. Ringland will sing several solos and Cannon will give an organ recital. This program is scheduled for 30 minutes starting at 10 o'clock.

ANNOUNCE PROGRAM FOR CASTILIANS

Hermosilla is the name of a very remote city in Old Mexico and is also the title of the spirited march which Walker's Austex Castilians will use to open their program over station KREG Monday morning when they go on the air for 15 minutes starting at 9:15 a. m.

"Hermosilla" is followed by "Mi Viejo Amor," a song full of love and romance. "Clavellitos" in English, "The Carnations," is a very beautiful dance number. The program closes with "Mavi," which is a serenade as languorous and beautiful as the dark eyes of Mexican senoritas.

You Should Take No Chances with HIS MILK!

He is King, and His Majesty's food, which consists principally of milk, must be prepared with the utmost care. No one knows that better than Mother, who is his constant bodyguard. The milk His Royal Highness receives must be of known quality, clean and absolutely safe.

But as the years roll by and he reaches school age is his milk required to pass the same strict test of safety? Is his health less vitally important, just because he is older?

The milk drunk by the entire family, no matter what their ages may be, SHOULD BE known to be absolutely safe—as safe as milk you would feed a year-old baby!

Safe milk is the most perfect food known to man. Every child should have at least one quart a day, and all adults one pint.

Raitt's Milk is protected by the highest standards of purity—standards that have made RAITT'S the choice of the most particular for 35 years—

To Men Who Gamble a Little Now and Then!

We're not interested in the merits of gambling with cards, horses, and so on, or the question of personal liberty. All gamblers know that at best you only break even in the long run. And all men gamble more or less, or want to—with some it's a disease and with others just a pastime.

We have a suggestion to the latter class (very few in the former class would take advantage of it). If you're accustomed to appropriating $10, $25 or $50 every so often for fun at the races, or elsewhere, try breaking off for a year and sticking the same amounts away in a Reserve Savings Account—an account just for the purpose of "having" it! Then, at the end of a year, figure out if it's worth it!

This is not a preaching of any kind!—we're just out after new accounts to pay 4% interest on!—purely a business proposition with us!

We Give Two Kinds of Interest — Personal and 4%.

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

PAUL IN CORINTH

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of The Congregationalist

Corinth was an important place in Paul's ministry as it was in the ancient world. Paul spent long periods at Corinth, much longer than he seems to have spent at any other point in his missionary journeys.

Corinth was called "the eye of Greece." It was a busy and prosperous city, magnificent and luxurious, a center of learning and worldly culture, and also a city of licentiousness. "To live as they do at Corinth" became a byword for luxurious and licentious living. Such a center undoubtedly offered Paul a great challenge, and he was evidently further moved to make a long stay there by his happy situation in the home of Aquila and Priscilla, Jews who had come from Rome when the emperor, Claudius, had expelled them from that city. Aquila and Priscilla were of the same trade as Paul, tentmakers. He supported himself in his trade and discussed religion in the synagogue every Sabbath.

Paul's ministry was further inspired when Silas and Timothy came to Corinth from Macedonia. Opposition developed among the Jews, and Paul, conscious that he had done everything to win them, turned to preach to the Gentiles. Leaving the synagogue, he found a place in the house of Titus Justus, a devout man whose house was next door to the synagogue. Crispus, the ruler of the synagogue, was among those who believed Paul's message, and he and many of the Corinthians were baptized.

Here again Paul had a vision in the night encouraging him in his ministry, urging him to be faithful and brave. In this vision he had the assurance that his ministry would have success, and he stayed a year and six months in Corinth, teaching day to day.

It is no wonder that this great and substantial ministry had its effects. Apparently many of those who were won to the Christian way were men and women to whom religion had meant little before. They had been pagan. Roused by the new faith, their sincerity was manifested in the midst of considerable ignorance.

In some cases they sought to carry over into the new way of life practices that had been in accord with their licentious surroundings. Others felt the abhorrence of the practice of eating anything that had been offered to an idol, and they wanted to make their rule of life apply to everybody else.

With all such questions Paul had to deal from a Christian standpoint. Many things that he has written in the epistles to the Corinthians have been seriously misunderstood or wrested out of their proper meaning. The important thing to grasp is that Paul sought to deal with all these problems in the light of the Christian law of love.

The high point of the epistles is the 13th chapter of the first epistle in which we have Paul's marvelous eulogy of love. He analyzes its contents and profoundly sets forth love's manifestations and effects. It is one of the noblest passages in all literature.

That is Paul's great message; that was the highest and noblest point in his contact with the Corinthians; that is the point at which all great religion issues and where its truest import is brought to bear upon life. A loveless religion can never be a true religion or a religion that is worth while at all.

Paul's ministry was further inspired when Silas and Timothy came to Corinth from Macedonia. Opposition developed among the Jews, and Paul, conscious that he had done everything to win them, turned to preach to the Gentiles. Leaving the synagogue, he found a place in the house of Titus Justus, a devout man whose house was next door to the synagogue. Crispus, the ruler of the synagogue, was among those who believed Paul's message, and he and many of the Corinthians were baptized.

Here again Paul had a vision in the night encouraging him in his ministry, urging him to be faithful and brave. In this vision he had the assurance that his ministry would have success, and he stayed a year and six months in Corinth, teaching day to day.

It is no wonder that this great and substantial ministry had its effects. Apparently many of those who were won to the Christian way were men and women to whom religion had meant little before. They had been pagan. Roused by the new faith, their sincerity was manifested in the midst of considerable ignorance.

"RIGHTEOUSNESS"

Everywhere there is what we call "depression," and we cannot make light of it. Everyone knows that conditions are a long way from being as satisfactory as they might be—materially speaking.

Many people seem not yet to be alive to the fact that the world's material adversity is the Church's spiritual opportunity.

Of course every measure under the sun will be tried before that one measure which is the panacea for most of our ailments. I mean simply being decent. I mean simply refusing to play the parasite on any of the numerous planes on which it is possible to play it. Who was it said that, unless we are better we will not be so good?

This is no time for circumlocation and equivocation.

The Church has not yet made its contribution to this so-called materialistic age which is in such sad need of being saved from itself.

The Church has only one stock-in-trade—and that is righteousness; righteousness, the child of spiritual-mindedness. For a long time the Church has played the parasite upon itself—upon its own history; upon its own accumulated reserve of devotion to the Lord of all good life.

What we need today is a re-consecration of what we are by virtue of the Lord, to what we can do for the extension of His Kingdom.

The problem must be solved first of all within us. Doubts must be vanished; equivocations must be thrown overboard; compromises and reservations in the realm of personal behavior must be branded for what they are and dumped back into the limbo of darkness whence they came.

It is no time for a kid-glove handling of the issues of life.

Standards of morality (or rather of immorality) have sought to banish from our thought the image and the ethics of Christ and His Church.

We are where we are today economically, internationally, morally, and individually, because men and women (alas, even great numbers of those who have called themselves Christians) have permitted themselves to be deceived with regard to what decent behavior and citizenship consists of, and have surrendered to theories of behavior in the relationship of life that only a fool or a knave could fail to recognize as destructive of all that is true and good and beautiful—that is destructive of the very essence of Christianity itself.

We have over-produced everything but righteousness. Many of us have even dared to go into the House of God without trying the bell at the door. Religion and the deep things of life have been cheapened. We are living in the third period of American life. The first saw the passing of the buffalo; the second, the passing of the antelope; and today we have the passing of the buck.

Let us wake up and strive to be true followers of Jesus Christ. Let us cultivate a clarity of spiritual discernment and virility of moral behavior that will put to flight the powers of darkness that are encamped about us.

Want Supervisors To Spend Fund To Attract Tourists

FULLERTON, Oct. 24.—"Make Orange county known to the tourists who visit Los Angeles next year," was the keynote of the meeting of the Orange County Press association last night at McFarland's cafe.

This idea was presented by A. W. McBride. He said that it was his belief that the county supervisors should be asked to spend the entire 1932 advertising fund for this purpose—"visit Orange county." His views were approved by others present.

Bruce Crandall told of the tourist association which was recently formed at San Clemente and that the next meeting of this group was scheduled to be held in Fullerton some time in the near future.

Ted Phillips, president of the association presented the plan to have the association meet every three months. This plan was adopted.

Frank Rospaw extended an invitation from Mrs. Susana Bixby to meet November 6 at the Rancho Santa Ana in the Santa Ana canyon.

A letter of sympathy was to be prepared and sent to Edgar Johnson, former Fullerton publisher, because of the death of Mrs. Johnson.

HUNTERS WILL FIGHT ARREST AT CAPISTRANO

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Oct. 24.—Much interest has been aroused locally by the trial Monday of Harold Harris, A. Daneri and R. T. Wiley, of San Juan Capistrano, and M. Reyes, of El Modena, who will appear before Judge Landell to answer to a charge of hunting on posted land. The complaint was filed 10 days ago by George Harris, an employee of the Santa Margarita ranch. The accused men have employed Attorney Bert West, of Santa Ana, to represent them.

Claim is made that no boundaries have been established on the land and that no permit could have been secured, as there is no authorized sign such a document, the death of Charles Hardy, some months ago, having caused that vacancy.

The three local men have frequently given their services as fire fighters in the vicinity in which they were arrested, it is said. The case is expected to be hard fought.

Improvements For Two Stores, Cafe In Mission City

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Oct. 24.—Three San Juan Capistrano business men are making extensive improvements in their places of business. Carl A. Rorer, owner of the town's largest store, is completely remodeling the interior, rearranging shelving and counters, and redecorating and painting. W. W. Ullen is doing the work.

D. L. Wylie, who bought the Keeney grocery store several months ago, is making improvements. The partition in the rear of his store has been removed to make room for an increase in stock and the entire interior of the building will be redecorated.

O. K. Carr, manager and owner of the Spanish inn, has made his cafe distinctive by painting the walls green and using bright red table cloths and napkins. Long strands of red pepper at the windows add color and character to the place. New cases and counters were added this week.

FULLERTON, Oct. 24.—The Southern California council of the Izaak Walton league of America will meet in Fullerton the evening of November 9, it was announced yesterday by John Gregory, president of the local chapter.

The schedule calls for a banquet at the California hotel after which those in attendance will go to the new cabin in Hillcrest park, where the meeting will be held. The meeting will be in charge of Dave Vashinder, of Ontario, who is president of the council.

HEIGHTS AREA VOTES OCT. 27 ON ANNEXATION

NEWPORT BEACH, Oct. 24.—An election to decide whether a portion of Newport Heights is to be annexed to the city will be held Tuesday. Only residents of the district involved will vote on the question.

Election officials are Mrs. Sadie Irwin, inspector; R. C. Bell, judge; Fred Kenline, judge. The district involved begins at Newport boulevard and the old county road and along the county road to Sixteenth street and along Sixteenth street to the high school and thence along the high school east boundary to the section of Newport Heights already a part of the city.

The Greater Newport Heights association was organized to boost annexation. Mrs. Sadie M. Irwin is president; and R. C. Bell, secretary. At a recent meeting of the council annexation was opposed by non-resident lot owners, but the petition for annexation carried sufficient names to force the city council to call the election.

Driver Escapes Injury In Crash

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Oct. 24.—Harold A. Jackson, radio operator on the airplane carrier Saratoga, driving on the coast highway at Main and Ocean avenue in this city at 6 o'clock this morning, crashed into two cars on the ocean side of the street.

In the heavy fog which prevailed Jackson was driving and following the white line carefully, keeping on his side of the highway and using every precaution, police were told, but in the dense fog he could not see the rear end of the parked cars which protruded into the highway to such an extent that the Jackson car crashed into them. All three autos were badly wrecked, but Jackson escaped injury.

CHURCH GROUP HAS LUNCHEON FOR AID FUND

ORANGE, Oct. 24.—One of the pleasantest affairs of the week was the vanishing luncheon which was given yesterday in the home of Mrs. Floyd Arnold, 344 East La Veta street, when Mrs. A. M. Shriver was co-hostess with Mrs. Arnold.

The table was lovely with Halloween decorations. A bent old witch stirred the mystic contents of a cauldron in the center and tiny witches were seated on their broom sticks on the edges of the candy baskets with which the place cards were combined. The menu carried out the Halloween motif and yellow squash and rosy baked apples were served with baked ham, scalloped potatoes, green peas, delicious jam and hot rolls, coffee and cake.

Several of the guests brought needlework and remained to sew during the afternoon. Funds from the affair will go to the First Methodist church Ladies' Aid and guests at yesterday's luncheon will be hostesses at others which are to follow soon. Among those who are to entertain are Mrs. Pernel Barnett and Mrs. J. T. Moore and Mrs. W. M. Sipherd.

Decorations for the affair carried out a lovely color scheme of rose and yellow and these tints prevailed in the bouquets of fall blossoms which were used about the spacious rooms of the Hart home. Games of various sorts were enjoyed and first prize was awarded to Mrs. Lydia Flitschen and the consolation to Miss Harris.

Before the refreshment course was served Miss Harris was presented with numerous gifts, which when divested of their dainty wrappings proved to be articles to be used in the new home. The ice and cakes repeated the chosen colors for the decorations.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—
Purdue should have an advantage in football enrollment. Engineers come out of dear old Purdue by the hundreds . . . and settle in every part of the country where there is construction work . . . or where there are heavy pushing, hauling, tugging or other rough duties to be done . . . thinking alike of dear old Purdue and of educating his fellow man, the old grad hardly could be blamed for asking Gus Zisch, a wisecracking man on a building job, if he wouldn't like to better himself at Purdue by studying Horace's Odes . . . and incidentally to stand there in the line and maul whatever people get in his way.

BASEBALL MYSTERY
Here is the picture: The Cardinals, leading the Athletics in games, 3 to 2, play the sixth game of the recent world series before a crowd of nearly 40,000 people. The Athletics win. Next day the rubber game is played before a crowd of slightly more than 20,000, about half of the attendance of the sixth game. Just what is the answer, Watson?

Could it be the depression? Or, is the answer to be found in the fact that the exhibition of baseball staged by the Cardinals in the sixth game was so terrible that thousands remained away from the crucial game because they were disgusted with the team? Our operatives are still at work on the problem.

ONE AND ONE
In the table of averages covering the recent "little world series" between Rochester, champion of the International league, and St. Paul of the American association, appeared at the top the name of George Sisler. He batted 1000.

In one game George was once at bat. He singled. That may have been his last time at bat, for after the series he was released.

There was something magnificent about that last blow by old George, as it were a last gasp of defiance to unfriendly fate. Here was a used-up ball player at the plate, a badly used up player at that. His legs were shaky and his eyes were a bit blurry, but when the pitcher hurled that white streak toward the plate, George for an instant reclaimed his lost greatness.

URNS BACK YEAR
Once again he was a fine ball player, a ball player who had been able to crack American league pitching for 420 nine years before.

So when that white ball came hurtling down the alley, George just drew back and patted it whistling right out of there.

And for this he was rewarded with $600, which was a player's share for participating in the little world series.

THREE OTHER GUYS
Meanwhile the world series, the big world series, was staged, and in the cast of characters were three people named respectively, Roettger, High and Flowers.

Roettger was brought in from Cincinnati in a trade for Douthett, going from a last place club to share in the world series spoils.

High was brought back from the Cardinal farm at Rochester just in time to get hit out of the big money. Jake Flowers, after some indifferent years with Brooklyn, fell into world series fortune when the Cardinals felt the need of an extra infielder.

Here were three ball players who at their best hardly could be mentioned in the same breath with Sisler at his worst. They each took down approximately $4500 for their services on the bench and in the field in seven games.

Yet Sisler, ranking with the

HILL, DALEY BROTHERS AID TRAINMEN IN TOMORROW'S TIFF WITH SANTA ANA CLUB

Aided and abetted by such local personalities as "Memphis" Hill and Ed and Leavitt Daley, the Pacific Electric Trainmen of Los Angeles invade Santa Ana's new baseball park tomorrow for a game at 2:15 p. m. with the Hancock Oilers.

The Trainmen boast one of the fastest semi-pro organizations in the big town and figure to give the Oilers 100 per cent more opposition than the Los Angeles Police did last Sunday.

Ed Green, an El Paso pitcher, will be on the range for the Trainmen with Garrison back of the leg. La Rue at first base, L. Daley second, Turner third and Hill short compose the infield. Yeager, Mercurio and E. Daley roam the pastures.

Santa Ana presents the same lineup that started against the "Flatfeet" in Sunday's 14-0 flacco except that his Archie Carpenter of Fullerton will appear at first base, letting Randolph Bell return to left field and team up with Orville Schuchardt and Joe Mene.

The Oilers boast a four-man pitching staff with "Wiz" Stoner or Larry Hemus likely for the assignment, and Homer Hurst and "Fuzzy" Page in reserve. Willard Hembarger will do the catching. Carpenter will be at first base. Darwin Scott second, "Chisel" Hatfield third and "Hen" Thierly shortstop.

Sunday-week the Hancock have booked a game here with the Cannon Ball Express aggregation.

Saint 'B' Title Hope Blasted, 14-0

PASADENA TOO POWERFUL FOR LOCAL LIGHTIES

Championship air castles of the Santa Ana high school Class B football eleven were rudely shattered today following the 14-0 defeat of Coach Clyde Patton's eleven at the hands of a charging Pasadena line and backfield here.

It was the second league contest for the Saint graders and they entered the game supremely confident that they would win easily on the strength of their 6-6 tie with San Diego last Saturday. Instead the Santa Ana backs met a stonewall line that was nearly impossible to penetrate.

Yesterday's setback put the Saints in the cellar with one tie and one defeat. The Bulldog lighties are in the lead with two wins and no defeats.

In the first period the teams were virtually even, but in the second quarter Pasadena started a long and determined drive toward the Saint goal. With the ball resting on the Santa Ana four-yard marker, Gabriel, left half, plunged across for the first touchdown. Casserly kicked goal.

Pasadena kicked off to start the second half. Santa Ana, after making a first down in two plays, was held for downs without making a yard. Prelinger kicked and the Saints held the Bulldogs for four downs without a gain. Casserly kicked a high one to Quon, Saint quarter, who fumbled, a Pasadena recovering on the 30-yard tripe. A series of "power plays" took the oval to the Santa Ana three-yard line where Gabriel was able to go over standing up for the second touchdown. Again Casserly kicked goal.

Santa Ana's only chance to score came in the fourth when Quon carried the piskin to the Bulldog one-yard marker on a run around left end. With four downs to go it looked like a sure touchdown for the Saints but a stubborn Pasadena line held four times, took the ball and Casserly kicked out of danger.

The lineup:
Santa Ana (0) (14) Pasadena
Woodward (1) (1) Casserly
Klepper (1) (1) Van Duzen
Rash (1) (1) Jones

JAYCEE WOMEN IN BASKETBALL DRILL

If safety in numbers means anything, freshmen women of Santa Ana junior college have a safe outlook in basketball this season, for 17 appeared in uniform for the first practice of the season. Sophomore women were not far behind, however, with 14 candidates and the promise of more to register soon.

Practices will be held every Monday and Wednesday afternoon from 4 to 5 o'clock. Mrs. Ellen Foote, women's coach at the local college, is in charge, returning to her duties after a year's leave of absence.

Aspirants for the freshman team include Betty Hawk, Hazel Spencer, Bonnie Kieker, Louise Leck, Betty Walker, Betty Vore, Frances Carl, Edna Kohler, Alice Sims, Helen Wiesmann, Helen Matt, Verma Helm, Norma Kenney, Mary Jane Dodd, Shirley Day, Patricia Ferris.

Soph candidates are Lorna Allen, Eugenia Gire, Florence Cokerley, Evelyn Green, Catherine Harwood, May Hasenjaeger, Eugenia Huddle, Hazel Hushman, Gladys Lloyd, Neva McDonald, Esther Morgan, Eugenia Richards, Evelyn Williams, Shirley Thurman.

CARDS DRAW RAINY WEATHER IN NORTH
SEATTLE, Oct. 24.—(UP)—Only the weather—raw, rainy, windy—was aligned against Stanford and Washington for their important clash here this afternoon.

Slides may be clear at game time but three days of drenching left the turf slippery and soggy, a factor that may decide the game before about 35,000 fans.

Both teams depend on speed and tricks. "Pop" Warner's big burst of offensive strength was Phil Moffatt with Merle Hufford cast in the triple threat role for Jimmie Phelan's Huskies.

M. E. SOUTH IN 34-15 CHURCH LOOP TRIUMPH

Ring up a 17-to-10 lead at the half, the well-groomed South Methodist quintet coasted through a 34 to 15 victory over the First Methodist on the Y. M. C. A. court last night to retain its lead in the Santa Ana Church basketball race. It was M. E. South's third straight win.

Because of a volleyball game this was the only contest played, the Christian-Brethren game being postponed until next Friday. The Christians are undefeated and show possibilities of winning the league championship, an honor which they walked away with last year.

A 36-to-19 victory over the United Brethren Wednesday put the United Presbyterian five a notch higher in the standings, and two other teams, the Latter Day Saints and the Orange Avenue Christians, climbed by virtue of their respective 25-to-19 and 19-to-11 wins over the First Baptist and Costa Mesa teams.

Next week's schedule: Wednesday—Latter Day Saints vs. United Presbyterian, Costa Mesa vs. Church of Brethren, M. E. South vs. Baptists; Friday—Orange Avenue vs. First Methodists, United Brethren vs. Christians, and the Church of Brethren vs. First Christians.

Latter Day Saints (25) (19) Baptists

Saint 'Cees' Prepare For First Game

By BOB SPURGEON

In preparation for their first league game, October 31, when they open hostilities with Long Beach, Coach Clyde Cook is hustling his Saint Class C charges into stride. He started Thursday with a long practice drill against Ferris Scott's Lathrop junior high school "Cees."

Considerably outwitted, the Saints were not overly impressive, but Cook was able to find out a thing or two about his reserve material. That he is still weak offensively in the center of the line is evident. The guards and center, strong offensively, are woefully weak on blocking.

The South Main Streeters seemed to skirt the ends with considerable ease and to make yards on passes. However, Brown, regular end, and Hanson, semi-regular end, were confined to the sidelines with small injuries, as were Tannenbaum and Owens, regular halfbacks.

The Saint backfield has been changed this week with the insertion of Richard (The Bull) Foster at halfback. Foster shows exceptional ability smashing the line as he is heavy and has lots of drive.

Next Tuesday, the Huntington Beach "Cees" are slated to invade the local turf for a return practice game. On a previous game the two teams shared honors at 6 all.

Outstanding players were few against Lathrop but Velarde, Maynard, and Flockston all showed up nicely on the defense.

Bowling Scores
M. H. Case and George Leehaven, Phoenix, Ariz., bowlers, began a nationwide tour in defeat here last night, outdistanced 146 pins in six games by Henry Christian and Harry Gaspar of Santa Ana. A Harry crowd watched the upset at the Bowlers' Inn.

Showing no respect whatever for reputations, Christian and Gaspar piled up 423 pins in the first game while the visitors were making 377. The Santa Ana men added to their advantage in the second and third games and coasted into victory behind their long lead.

The scores:
Case: 203-191-205-190-168-170; total 1128.
Leehaven: 174-133-136-132-146-200; total 921.
Christian: 233-176-174-148-148-184; total 1055.
Gaspar: 190-178-248-178-191-165; total 1145.

LOU BROUILLARD NEW RULER OF WELTER CLASS

BOSTON, Oct. 24.—(UP)—The world's welterweight championship belonged to Lou Brouillard of Danvers, Conn., today by virtue of his hammer and tonge victory over Jack Thompson of Chicago at Boston Garden last night before 13,200 persons.

Brouillard snatched the championship from the Chicago Negro in the fact of predictions that his youth would be no match for the skilled Thompson. The Connecticut boxer's 10-round decision victory in July in a no-title contest was discounted because of Thompson's poor condition.

Brouillard weighed 146 3-4. Thompson 146.

All but two rounds were awarded to Brouillard.

ed to Brouillard. The second was counted even and the 14th was won by Thompson on a whirlwind finish that had Brouillard backing into the ropes.

Brouillard scored four knockdowns but one of them was gained after a momentary wrestling bout and was not clean-cut. The first two were in the 10th, Lou's best of many good rounds.

Thompson, groggy from a severe pounding, was sent to the canvas by a steady tattoo of blows and remained there for a count of two. He jumped up only to be sent down again and this time he remained for a count of nine.

In the 13th Thompson sank for a count of seven under a left to the heart. He won the next round but the 15th was Brouillard's.

Santa Ana 'Y' Volleyball Men Blank Glendale
R. R. Russick's Santa Ana Y. M. C. A. volleyball men, facing their first opposition of the 1931 season, made a clean sweep of six practice games with Glendale's "Y" team here last night.

Santa Ana showed considerable strength in defeating its visitors 15-6, 15-11, 15-7, 15-12, and 15-7. Glendale played heads-up ball in every contest and pressed the Russick team in the second, fourth and fifth games.

Coast Sends 16 Players To Big Tent

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 24.—(UP)—Sixteen fine ball players will go to the major leagues next spring from the Pacific Coast league, which annually supplies some of the best talent for the big time. Only two were drafted, Dave Barbee, the league's leading home run hitter, from Hollywood by Pittsburgh, and Eddie Moore, Oakland shortstop by the Giants.

Pitchers Nelson and Hermann, Catcher Campbell and Outfielder Moore were recalled from Los Angeles by the Chicago Cubs. Detroit recalled Phil Page, Seattle southpaw, and the Athletics recalled Outfielder Bob Johnson of Portland.

Frank Crosetti, San Francisco shortstop, goes to the Yankees and may run "Broadway" Lary, another coast league product, off the job. Other sales include Sam Gibson, San Francisco are right-hander to the Giants; Catcher Bill Brunzel of the Missions to Pittsburgh; Infielder Harry White, Sacramento, to Cleveland; Pitcher Monte Pearson, Oakland, to Cleveland; Infielder-Outfielder Bill Rihel of Portland to Detroit; Seattle Infielder Bill Lawrence of Seattle to Detroit and Infielder Eddie Farrell to the New York Giants.

FISTIC MOGULS BAR LOUGHRAN, 'IRE M'LEMORE
BY HENRY MCLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(UP)—The New York state athletic commission, of which William Muldoon, the "greatest Roman of them all," is chairman, today was in undisputed possession of the all-time record for muddled thinking and inconsistency.

The commissioners, or the three dumb ducks, as they have been aptly called on more than one occasion, clinched both records yesterday when they created a new "dreadnaught" heavy class and refused to recognize Tommy Loughran as a fit opponent for Primo Carnera.

It is not hard to imagine who was behind the creation of the "dreadnaught" or super palooka class. Mister Muldoon, who used to be called Getautometatolnehal to be quite the shakes as a wrestler and who still thinks like one, has been planning this new class for more than a year.

Even Godfrey Included
Members of the super palooka club must weigh not less than 220 and extend 6 feet 3 or more. Hap Kinsler, who was voted "Mr. Muldoon" named Carnera, Victorio Campolo, Walter Cobb, George Godfrey and Jose Santa charter members. The fact that Godfrey is barred from fighting in this state made no difference to Muldoon. The super-palookos must fight only fellow members, and will not be allowed to pick on 200-pound midgets.

Creation of this extra division is a direct affrontance on the part of the commission. Several years it has been down on "trick" classes, refusing to recognize the junior lightweight and junior welterweight champions.

Peculiar Reasoning
I'll lay you even money that Einstein could not figure out why the same commission barred Loughran as an opponent for Carnera, and then, in the same breath, okayed Campolo as a foe for the big Italian. Loughran, all but chased out of the ring here a few months back.

Just to make sure its claim to the goofy championship would not be soon challenged, the commission issued an edict that hereafter no boxer may skip a class. If a lightweight outgrows his division he may fight as a welter but cannot meet middleweights.

The commission didn't say that this ruling looks like a direct slap at Mickey Walker, who jumped the light heavies for a crack at the heavies. Walker is the guy who gave Jack Sharkey, Muldoon's pride and joy, such a miserable evening.

Tennis Prospects Improve at Jaycee
A much larger enrollment of aspirants for the Santa Ana Junior college women's tennis team is noted this year. Practices will be held every Tuesday and Thursday afternoon from 4 to 5 o'clock.

Those listed for the sport include Helen Bower, Lorna Allen, Florence Stanley, Agnes McKinstry, Marjorie Arundell, Bernadine Bastian, Margaret Gard, Barbara Rurup, Louise Rurup, Joy McPhee, Eugenia Gire, Miriam Samuelson.

Next week's game will just about tell what is what and who is who in the Orange County league.

Undefeated Brea-Olinda, idle for two weeks, returns to the competitive fold Friday against Dick Glover's snappy Anaheim Colonists. This will be the season's first crucial football contest in the county confederacy, for the winner may suffer elimination from the race. They play at Brea.

On the same day, Orange plays Tustin at Orange.

Couch Stewart, White's Orangemen crushed Garden Grove, 43-0, yesterday and was reinstated favorite over its field by all the experts who weren't so sure after scrappy Anaheim held the Panthers to a scoreless tie last week. Naturally, this stirring victory makes the Whitemen a prohibitive choice over Coach Bill Cole's crippled Farmers who were beaten by Garden Grove and lost again yesterday to Anaheim, 20-7.

Orange showed amazing manpower against Garden Grove, Quarterback Welly running wild behind fine interference. Welly got off runs of 80, 70 and 50 yards for touchdowns before he gave way to reserves. Another feature was the Garden Grove passing combination, Hapke to Hodgson, which didn't score but completed 15 out of 22 attempts over head.

Anaheim had the edge over Tustin in all but the third quarter when the Farmers scored after recovering an Anaheim fumble on the 33-yard line. Earl Horton found a hole at center and reeled off 20 yards. He made another first down on the 2-yard line, then bucked it over.

Anaheim scored in the first two minutes of play, recovering a fumbled punt on the Farmers' 15-yard line and running ends for the score. The Colonists got their other touchdowns in the second half, both on passes, Bouldin to Grimm. Anaheim showed a powerful line and a hard running back in Bouldin.

ANAHEIM WINS ANNUAL BATTLE WITH FARMERS

Special From Anaheim

That's the score by which Coach Dick Glover's Fighting Colonists defeated the Tustin Farmers in the Tustin gridiron yesterday afternoon, before a capacity crowd.

The game, which was broadcast over radio station KGER, through the courtesy of the Tustin Cement Pipe company, was packed with thrills and several errors by each team.

Anaheim, led by Captain Howard Minder, cashed in on a break early in the first quarter when Lindsey, Tustin quarterback, fumbled a punt on his own 15 yard line which was recovered by a Colonist player.

On two plays Bouldin, Anaheim's fullback, scored the first touchdown, less than four minutes after the start of the game. The score was converted on a place kick by Bouldin.

Tustin kicked off after which an exchange of punts, one by Daws for 30 yards and one by Lindsey for 35.

The Tustin forward wall held the Colonists which combined with a 15 yard penalty for holding, forced the "Anaheimers" to punt, a 25 yard boot by Daws.

The end of the first quarter found the ball in the possession of Tustin on their own 33 yard line. Anaheim had made two first downs from scrimmage to Tustin's none.

Opening the second quarter Tustin punted and Danny Smith, substitute for Cline, produced a run-back of 15 yards. Daws punted 37 yards to Lindsey, and on the next play Herb German threw Sears for a 5 yard loss. After an unsuccessful attempt to complete a pass over Bouldin, Lindsey punted 20 yards and Davis ran the ball back 20 yards which was no gain for Tustin.

Following a see-saw period when the ball was carried by both teams the half ended with the ball on Anaheim's 15 yard stripe.

Anaheim kicked off to Carlson, who in turn punted to Anaheim's 33 yard line. A fumble by Cline gave Tustin the ball on the Colonists 33 yard line. In the next three plays Horton, former fullback, carried the ball over for the only Tustin score. Horton converted on a line buck over guard.

The Farmers kicked off to Grimm, but the Colonists didn't care to carry the ball and punted. Tustin was given a 15 yard penalty for holding, which placed the ball on the Tustin 15 yard line.

Anaheim secured the ball on down and in the next four plays, one a 25 yard pass from Bouldin to Grimm, who ran the remaining 6 yards for the second Colonist touchdown. The kick was wide which placed the score at 13-7, in favor of the Colonists.

Both teams "took turns" with the ball, neither team showing anything of importance for the ensuing few minutes. Finally both teams steamed up again; Bouldin intercepting a pass and running 15 yards with it.

Substitutes from both coaches were flying thick and fast. Finally Anaheim possessed the ball and from Tustin's 21 yard line, Bouldin threw another pass to German for the Colonists' third touchdown, which was converted on a place kick by Bouldin.

Tustin opened on passes, passes, passes and pass which resulted in a 5 yard penalty for the second incomplete pass.

Rang! The gun ended any further attempts on either side to score.

The deceased was a native of Ohio but had been a resident of California for five years, most of which time had been spent in Anaheim and Long Beach. He was the uncle of Mrs. M. B. Tomblin, 409 Elm street, Anaheim, where he had made his home while in Anaheim. He was a veteran of the Civil War, having served with the Ohio troops. He joined the army in Ohio when he was 14 years old. Upon being discharged from the army at the close of the war he settled in Wyoming at Daniel. He engaged in the ranching and cattle business from that time until he retired, when he moved to Ogden, Utah. He was past commander of the G. A. R. Odgen post, and also of the state of Utah.

He is survived by his niece and nephew, Mr. and Mrs. Tomblin, of this city, a nephew, Fire Chief A. L. Tomblin of Orange, and three stepchildren in the east.

Interment is to be made in the Anaheim cemetery.

Mr. Albert Launer and Miss Josephine Seaman.

Adjournment of the convention was commemorated by President Smith to "That great soul which has just passed on, Thomas Edison, in the hope that his torch will be thrown to someone of the newer generation who can help us to better interpret the age."

The highlight of the afternoon session was an address by Miss Seaman on "The Younger Generation in Fiction." Miss Seaman approached her subject by dealing with those who write fiction among the younger generation and those about whom fiction is written. Of the young authors she spoke of Aldous Huxley and Hemingway, "the sad young men" who are given to so much pessimism, of Daphne du Maurier who wrote the enthralling work, "The Loving Kind," Martha Ostenso who wrote "Wild Geese," Susan Everts with her "Story of Julian" and Stephen Vincent Benet, with his Pulitzer prize winning story of "John Brown's Body."

She discussed without revealing the plot those three outstanding novels which have done so much to reveal the spirit of the young and the things which they are trying to get at. "Winter's Moon" by Hugh Walpole, "Water Gipsy" by P. H. Rothery, and "The Story of Julian" by Susan Everts.

Miss Seaman pointed out that the very honesty of the younger generation commanded her respect and she feels that they are pushing on to something greater which in the end will produce a finer and higher type of individualism. She ended with the words of Kipling, which she said expressed her attitude, "Susan O'Grady and the Colonel's sister are sisters under the skin."

Launer and Mrs. Euen spoke on the importance of home life and the right spirit in controlling the younger generation. They closely followed the theme which Mrs. E. E. Smith, president, gave at the first of the year as an ideal, "Live wisely, that we may be able to interpret the new age to the new generation."

Two hundred delegates and friends were in attendance throughout the day for both the morning and afternoon sessions, of which the Eboli club was the hostess club with Mrs. Robert Hainlin, hostess president.

Two important resolutions were passed during the afternoon which followed reports from the department chairmen, and standing committees. The reports from the resolution committee given by Mrs. C. E. Huston took the form of a protest against objectionable motion pictures, regarding sex, violation of federal laws and propaganda against the eighteenth amendment.

The second resolution which was unanimously adopted related to water conservation. The resolution read that a committee composed of three citizens from each of the five electoral districts in the county be organized and that within 30 days after the resolution has been presented to the board of supervisors that they in turn call a mass meeting of citizens of the county who may elect the above mentioned committee to the Orange County Water Conservations and Improvement committee, who may co-operate with the supervisors in establishing and carrying out a water program in the county.

A charming luncheon was arranged under the generalship of Mrs. Hainlin, and was served by members of the Altus society of the St. Boniface Catholic church. Tables were decorated in the Halloween color theme with pots of black containing yellow fall flowers centering the tables. Corages of white gardenias and yellow baby gladiolus were placed before the state officers, district officers and county officers.

The luncheon honored the past county presidents, with the special guest of honor, Mrs. Harry Dyer, a former resident of Anaheim and first Eboli club president. Introduced as past presidents were Mrs. Ida Dutton, Mrs. Harry Dyer of Anaheim and Mrs. Albert Launer of Fullerton. Mrs. Dyer gave the program which consisted of a series of original poems which she has written during past years. Most of the poems were humorous recitals. Particularly lovely was her poem, "My Desert Song," which theme she enlarges upon from time to time. The poem reveals how the Mohave desert has been changed to "bloom like a rose."

A nominating and elections committee was named to report in April. Those who will serve on it are: Mrs. F. L. Williams of Anaheim, Mrs. C. C. Bonebrake of Orange, Mrs. R. E. Downs of Huntington Beach, Mrs. William Whitehead of Santa Ana and Mrs. William Snow of La Habra.

The musical program during the day included a group of violin solos by Miss Ollie Mae Matthews of Santa Ana who is a teacher in the Orange County School of Fine Arts, and three vocal solos by Reginald Taylor, baritone. Mr. Taylor was accompanied by Miss Kathryn Steward.

"CISCO KID" OPENS AT BROADWAY SUNDAY

James Dunn At West Coast Sunday In "Sob Sister"

NEW STAR SEEN IN EMOTIONAL NEW PICTURE

Proving that what he had done before he could do again and that his marvelously human performance in "Bad Girl" was not an accident or a flash in the pan James Dunn makes his second screen appearance tomorrow at the Fox West Coast theater in the photoplay, "Sob Sister," and in the opinion of this reviewer his portrayal of Gerry Webster, ace newspaper reporter, was even greater than his impersonation of Eddie, the radio mechanic and boy husband in his previous film.

There is something about this boy Dunn that seems to dig its way under your skin and make you like him. It may be that infectious smile of his, or the easy and natural way in which he speaks his lines, or his breezy, youthful and confident manner, or a combination of all three. But whatever it is he used it to good effect on his audience yesterday. "Sob Sister" derives its title from the appellation tagged on to those feminine members of the press who write up the heart-throb angles of murder cases and while it deals with the experiences of one of these thrill writers it is not in its true sense a newspaper story. Rather than depicting the hustle and bustle of the editorial and press rooms it tells the more interesting and human story of the girl's own romance with a rival reporter, a romance which is cast under a shadow and almost on the rocks by business rivalry and antagonism.

"Sob Sister" also marks the screen debut of another young star, one who was chosen by Fox as one of their 1931 star debuts, Miss Linda Watkins. Miss Watkins comes from the Broadway stage, and after seeing her first film performance, it is not difficult to understand why she was so popular in New York.

Other members of the cast who acquit themselves admirably are Minna Gombell, Molly O'Day, Howard Phillips and George E. Stone.

LAWRENCE RETURNS
Vincent Lawrence, Paramount scenarist, author of "Among the Married," and "In Love With Love," and other hits, has returned to Hollywood from New York, where he witnessed the premier of his new play, "Washington Heights."

DEEP SEA FILM AT WEST COAST FEATURES HOLT

From lofty heights to murky depths—from cruising the skies in a giant dirigible to searching the ocean bottom as a deep sea diver—such has been the diverse experience of Jack Holt in his last two pictures.

When Jack Holt appeared as commander of the airship in Columbia's giant spectacle of the air, "Dirigible," he little realized that his next call would take him fifty fathoms below the surface. His new vehicle is "Fifty Fathoms Deep," also a Columbia picture, showing today at the Fox West Coast theater. Jack, however, is no new hand to watery depths, for it was in "Submarine" that he established one of his greatest successes.

In addition to providing him with a variety in locale, "Fifty Fathoms Deep" allows Jack a latitude of mood. He is a rollicking blade with a keen sense of humor, appearing to be as hard as nails but really possessing a heart of gold; a man of unquestioned courage and an insatiable desire to capture the fancy of the fair sex.

Others appearing with Jack in this deep-sea drama are Loretta Sayers, Richard Cromwell and Mary Moran. It was directed by that veteran showman, R. William Neill.

NOTRE DAME GRID PICTURE CLOSES TODAY

Lew Ayres and the Notre Dame football stars pound down the field for the last time tonight, when "The Spirit of Notre Dame," Universal's exciting gridiron picture, closes its engagement at the Fox Broadway theater.

This fast-moving screen play, on account of its timeliness, its interesting story, and the presence in it of many such famous football luminaries as Frank Carideo, all-American quarterback, and "The Four Horsemen," has created a veritable sensation, and has been acclaimed by local theater goers and football fans like with Russell Mack, its director, accredited with some of the most accurate, human football drama yet recorded by the sound camera.

Not only do many famous football figures appear throughout "The Spirit of Notre Dame," but Ayres' supporting cast also includes William Bakewell, J. Farrell MacDonald, Nat Pendleton, Harry Barrie, Florence Lake, Sally Blane and Violet Barlow in important roles.

KEN MAYNARD FILM CLOSES HERE TODAY

For film fans who like a well conducted story with a liberal degree of action and a modicum of mystery, "Arizona Terror," the latest Tiffany production, starring Ken Maynard at Walker's State theater, may be heartily recommended.

From the opening scenes on the blistering Mojave Desert showing three bandits trying to shake off the grim pursuit of a young Arizona rancher whose partner they have killed, until the closing sequence wherein the same young Arizona solves a mystery with considerable ingenuity and excitement, things happen and they happen fast.

MISS CHATTERTON BOWS TO CRICKET

Believe it or not, but a cricket ruined a motion picture scene yesterday.

Ruth Chatterton was in the midst of a dramatic moment for her Paramount vehicle, "Once A Lady," when a cricket started to chirp. When the director called "Cut," the cricket did likewise, but resumed his noise when the action was started again. After an hour's hunt, the insect was located—thus ending another screen career.

VIC M'LAGLEN, EDMUND LOWE AT WALKER'S

Long and eagerly awaited, Raoul Walsh's "Women of All Nations," comes to Walker's State theater Sunday for its initial showing and comes with lavish praise from every city in which it has appeared as the finest screen entertainment of the current year.

It brings not alone Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe, endeared to motion picture fans for years as the immortal marines, "Flags" and "Quirt," but it brings also their blundering marine companion, El Brendel as "Olsen," of "The Cock Eyed World" memory, and a new charmer in Greta Nissen, who plays the feminine lead. Miss Nissen has long been acclaimed the most beautiful natural blonde of stage or screen.

Not alone that, but the picture brings a score of real leading players in the supporting cast, such names as Fifi Dorsay, Marjorie White, Joyce Compton, Bela Lugosi, Charles Judels, T. Roy Barnes, Jesse De Vorka and a dozen others.

The picture is said to be the most photogenic, with more than 150 international beauties, Spanish charmers, Swedish, American, Turkish, Syrian, Arabian, French and in fact every nation is represented in the most gorgeous array of feminine pulchritude that has ever been shown on the screen.

TALLULAH BANKHEAD PLANS WESTERN TRIP

Tallulah Bankhead, toast of London, will make her next film production in Hollywood, it is announced at the Paramount studios. She is due from New York in November, following the completion of her current vehicle, "The Cheat."

Hallowe'en To Be Celebrated At West Coast

Children of Santa Ana are to be given a special Hallowe'en party show at the Fox West Coast theater next Saturday as their regular Mickey Mouse club menu, it was announced today by Walter Scott Smith, manager.

Plans for the Hallowe'en show are now under way and special entertainment of varied kinds will be produced on the stage, it was announced.

Aside from the Hallowe'en show, a regular picture will be shown on the screen, one selected for the children.

COMING TOMORROW

Warner Baxter and Conchita Montenegro in a scene from "The Cisco Kid," Baxter's latest, which opens at the Fox Broadway theater tomorrow and which is expected to be one of the highlights of film entertainment in Santa Ana this year.

Fairbanks Jr., In 1 P. M. Show Sunday

"I Like Your Nerve," is the name of the special 1 p. m. Sunday feature, which will be shown at the Fox West Coast theater Sunday, in addition to the regular feature, "Sob Sister."

The early Sunday afternoon shows, which allows patrons to see two features for the one admission price has become so popular in Santa Ana that the practice will probably be adopted permanently, it was announced.

"I Like Your Nerve," stars Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and recently played at two Los Angeles Warner Brothers theaters at the same time.

Kay Francis Starts Daschound Fad

The daschound fad has struck Hollywood between the eyes. Kay Francis, being featured by Paramount in "Girls About Town," has just acquired one, named Weenie; Lilyan Tashman, who was with her in the cast of the same picture, is going to buy one when she reaches Berlin next month.

CLAUDETTE COLBERT IN WEST FOR REST

Claudette Colbert arrived in Hollywood yesterday for a two-week vacation. She will return to New York early in November to start a new picture at the Paramount studios there.

SOHO DISTRICT LIVES AGAIN IN HOLLYWOOD

Eight sets, all adjoining, today were completed within the space of 100 square feet at the Paramount studios in Hollywood.

Representing portions of the famous Soho district in London, they will be used for "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," which Rouben

WARNER BAXTER IN NEW ROLE WITH ED LOWE

Plenty of action, a wealth of romance, a fast-moving story with a surprise ending, and gorgeous photoplay all feature "The Cisco Kid," Fox drama opening at the Fox Broadway Theater Sunday with Warner Baxter and Edmund Lowe in the colorful roles of a reckless border bandit and a cavalry sergeant.

With Conchita Montenegro as the dark charmer who attracts both men but cares only for one of them, and Nora Lane as the pioneer widow for whom Baxter risks his freedom, the reminiscence of the picture is amply provided for.

Lowe, hearing that his enemy is operating north of the border, starts after him. The chase leads to Carrizo, where Baxter is making violent love to Miss Montenegro, much to the annoyance of the local sheriff.

Baxter gets away, with Lowe's bullet in his shoulder, and rides to Miss Lane's ranch, where he is nursed back to health. Lowe tries to have Miss Montenegro betray Baxter, but she scornfully refuses, and the sergeant trails his enemy to the ranch, only to find him gone on a mysterious mission. This mission involves a bank hold-up in order to get money to keep Miss Lane from losing the ranch, and Lowe follows him only to be involved in a shooting affray in which Miss Montenegro pretends to be wounded.

Baxter escapes, however, and gives Miss Lane the money. Lowe, hot on his trail, comes to the ranch but the bandit is about to escape again when an unforeseen accident occurs, which changes the whole turn of events and provides an unusual climax.

The exterior scenes were made on the exact locale of the story, near Tucson, Arizona, and the supporting cast includes Charlie Stevens, James Bradbury, Jr., Willard Robertson, Chris Martin, Frederick Burt, Jack Dillon, Douglas Haig and Marilyn Knowlden.

One of Week's Pretty
Events is a Shower
For Mrs. Taylor

Miss Opal Brownlow entertained in honor of a school-day friend, Mrs. John Lacy Taylor, when she was hostess this week at a charming shower given in her home, 849 North Garnsey street. Mrs. Taylor will be remembered as Miss Charlotte Pritchard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Pritchard, this city.

Mrs. Ethel Hutchison assisted her daughter in entertaining. Games appropriate to the approaching event were played, with Miss Thelma Gerrard and Miss Mildred Schmidt winning first and second prizes and Mrs. Pauline Adkinson, low.

Many bouquets were used in decking the home for the occasion, with rust-hued dahlias and yellow chrysanthemums predominating. They were arranged with much fern and greenery.

For the serving of refreshments, tables were attractively placed, and of special interest was the one where Mrs. Taylor was seated. It was centered with a tiny wicker bassinet, tied with pink and blue ribbons and filled with pink sweet peas and fern. Each of the other tables was centered with pink and a white rosebud in a slender silver vase. The two-course menu served included creamed chicken on biscuits and cakes, one fed in pink and the other in white.

On the dining-room buffet a clever scene was depicted, for here a small doll was supposedly in the act of doing her washing, and above her hung a line of baby clothes.

An interesting feature of the evening came when Mrs. Taylor was given the array of pretty gifts which her friends had selected, with Miss Brownlow's niece, Betty Jeanne Stevens, and Doris Lorraine Faupel making the presentation. The large pink rosebud with frilly white lining which they placed before the honoree proved to contain the gifts.

Each guest received tiny cards on which she wrote names suitable for a girl and a boy. When Mrs. Taylor has chosen the name, she is to look at the cards, and present a prize provided at the party, to the one who had written that name.

Guests present included Mrs. Taylor, the honoree, and her mother, Mrs. C. L. Pritchard, Miss Thelma Gerrard, Mrs. Edward Bratt, Mrs. Pauline Adkinson, Miss Mildred Schmidt, Mrs. Ella Paupel, and daughter, Doris-Lorraine, Mrs. Lloyd L. Stevens, Betty Jeanne, Mrs. Ethel Hutchison, and the hostess, Miss Brownlow, this city, and Mrs. H. C. Franklin of Azusa.

Celebration of Three Birthdays is Held
In Los Angeles

Honoring Mrs. Alice A. Albee, Mrs. Ida Auxier, and Mrs. Anna C. Wells, whose birthdays occur the same day in October, Mrs. George K. Kemper, of Cheviot Hills, Los Angeles, entertained in her lovely home yesterday, with a 1 o'clock luncheon. Table appointments were in white, and a profusion of lovely white chrysanthemums adorned the home. A large birthday cake, iced in white, completed the delectable menu.

During the afternoon, the guests were entertained by having interesting fortunes told by the use of cards.

Those present, other than the honored guests, Mrs. Alice A. Albee and Mrs. Ida Auxier of Tustin, and Mrs. Anna C. Wells of Lemon Heights, were Miss Ethel Alderman, Tustin; Miss Minnie Day, of Santa Ana; Mrs. C. R. Robinson and Mrs. E. L. Door, of Los Angeles, and the hostess, Mrs. George W. Kemper.

Business Girls Attend
Dinner and Program

Open house was held last evening in the Y.W.C.A. when business girls of Santa Ana gathered for dinner and an evening of entertainment. Small tables were utilized during the dinner hour, and Halloween appointments were prominent.

During the evening, Miss Alma Carlson told fortunes, Miss Juanita Humphrey gave several piano numbers, and Miss Nella Gerardy gave a humorous reading, Ellis Parker Butler's "Aint no Ghosts."

This was the second "open house," and the third, to be held on the evening of November 5 is to be open to the public.

Santa Ana Women Take Part in District
Rallies

Mrs. Horton Palmer of this city, who is corresponding secretary for the San Diego district, Women's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church, was speaker at a rally of that organization's officers, held recently in the Normal Heights Methodist church of San Diego.

Several Santa Ana women attended this meeting, which was the first of a series.

The second meeting was held in the First Methodist church of Corona, and Mrs. John Barhart, district president presided, with Miss Gertrude Richardson, treasurer striking a note of cheer with her announcement that the district "would make the budget," a phrase which is manna to every missionary worker.

The third rally, in Orange county, was held in the First Methodist church of La Habra. Among representatives from Santa Ana were Mrs. H. W. Guthrie and Mrs. O. R. Mathew, the latter speaking on "The College Abroad Movement."

The latest meeting was held in the First Methodist church at Calexico. Rev. and Mrs. Q. T. Royer of that church proved royal hosts, and Miss Sadie May Smith, a missionary from Burma, provided an afternoon of interest with her talk on the country in which she teaches. She spoke of the great wish of the Burmese, to be free from India, and of the various missions established there, particularly those created by the Baptist missionaries over 100 years ago, and the Methodist Girls school at Pegu.

Milton Palmer, S. E. Hearn and Horton M. Palmer accompanied the Santa Ana party to these meetings.

China Provides Theme
For World Study Group

"China the Old" and "China of Today" were the subjects presented before members of the World's Study section of the First Congregational church, which met Wednesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. J. E. Liebig, 820 Spurgeon street.

Mrs. Maxwell Burke told about "China the Old," and of the continuous record of history which the great nation has kept since 2800 B.C. There has been a history of age, wisdom and conservatism behind her crumbling gray walls, Mrs. Burke said.

McKee Fisk, dean at Santa Ana junior college, presented the modern China, sketching the problems confronting that country and which she is trying to settle in a few decades. These are problems which took modern civilization 1000 years to solve, he said. Mr. Fisk asked his audience to have faith in the Chinese and to give China sympathy and understanding.

Many beautiful objects from the Orient were displayed, including two ceremonial scrolls sent Mrs. W. W. Whiting by one of her first pupils in China many years ago. Mrs. Perry Schrock read a translation of the inscriptions on the scrolls.

Tavern Tattlers Will Welcome New Members

When members of the Tavern Tattlers have a meeting Tuesday evening it will be in the home of Mrs. Robert Northcross, 1318 Spurgeon street. At that time, they will welcome 10 new members to their society.

Banquet

Miss Irene Schroeder, president of the Senior Walther League of the St. John's Lutheran church of Orange, extended greetings to nearly 400 young people of California who attended the banquet at the Walker Memorial hall in that city last night, the event having been planned to stimulate interest in the 1932 International Walther League convention which is to be held in Los Angeles.

The banquet was given in the gymnasium, which was decorated with shocks of corn, pumpkins and bouquets of fall flowers. Table appointments were carried out in the Halloween motif and life size witches on the walls rode on broomsticks, while their bony fingers pointed toward a sign which read, "To the 1932 Convention." The witches were made by Alfred Eisenbraun and the members of the decoration committee were Oliver Austenberg, Miss Lenore Peters, Miss Ethel Siemsen and Mr. Eisenbraun.

The program was opened with the addresses of welcome and the Rev. A. C. Bode, pastor of the church, spoke briefly, telling those present that pastors of Lutheran churches of Southern California were to support the Walther league in making the convention a success. It is expected that 4000 delegates from all parts of the world will be present.

Group singing was under the leadership of E. E. Wunderlich and Mr. Wunderlich gave two solos, accompanied by Mrs. Wunderlich. The Rev. A. G. Webbeking, pastor of the Immanuel Lutheran church of Orange, spoke on the benefits which will be derived from the convention. ## ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

DRIED BEEF ROLLS
Ordinarily we think of dried beef as something to be taken on a camping trip as a last resort, although a few of us do serve creamed chipped beef once in a blue moon. Give the creamed chipped beef way a rest and for a change try:

DRIED BEEF ROLLS
6 large slices dried beef.
1/4 cup minced dried beef.
1 1/2 cups mashed potatoes.
2 tablespoons minced green pepper.

6 thin slices bacon.
SAUCE FOR THE ROLLS
3 tablespoons butter.
3 1/2 tablespoons flour.
2 cups milk.
Salt and pepper.
Minced parsley.
2 hard cooked eggs, diced.
Use cold or hot mashed potato, just so it is smooth and pliable. Mix with the minced beef, minced green pepper, salt and pepper. While the stuffing is under way let the big slices of beef stand in hot water to make them pliable. Take from the water, lay flat, spread with the potato mixture, roll up and pin with toothpicks. Place in a casserole, with a slice of bacon over each roll. Bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven. Arrange the rolls on a hot platter, make a cream sauce mixture with the minced eggs (see ingredients listed for sauce). Pour over the rolls and serve with a salad and one cooked vegetable.

Try to get freshly dried beef—your butcher usually has it for slicing to order—so that the wrapping slices will be large ones, and not full of holes.

TODAY'S RECIPE

CHICKEN SAUTE WITH CAULIFLOWER
1 large frying chicken.
Fat for frying.
Flour to dredge.
Salt, pepper, lemon and onion juice to season chicken.
1 large cooked cauliflower.
2 cups cream cheese sauce.

Use a large young chicken, unjoint and parboil (leave the broth). Drain and marinate in the lemon and onion juice, which may be grated onion for convenience. Salt and pepper, and what the recipe doesn't call for—2 tablespoons of salad oil to help out the marinating process. After the chicken has been in the marinade for an hour, take out, roll in flour and saute in butter or bacon fat.

While the chicken is cooking, put the head of cauliflower, stem end down, in hot water and cook tender. Take up, break into flowerets, arrange on platter as a border to the brown pieces of chicken. Carefully pour over the cauliflower the cream cheese sauce, and serve with baked potatoes.

My pet cheese sauce is made this way: Make 2 cups of medium thick cream sauce (in double boiler, please), add 1 cup grated cheese, stir until melted, then add a little cayenne and enough lemon juice to give it a mild tang. Whip briskly with egg beater just before turning it over the cauliflower. You'll find this a perfect cheese sauce, not only for a vegetable dressing, but for fish or for macaroni dishes.

A 3-pound chicken, 1 large head of cauliflower and the sauce will serve 4 people. The calories per person will average about 550. Proteins predominate, and the fats are not too much in evidence if one goes easy on the cheese sauce.

Cut your food bills and live well by serving more of the common root vegetables. You may have a fine collection of recipes by sending me a stamped, self-addressed envelope today only, and asking for the leaflet, "Cooking Winter Vegetables." An revoir till Monday!

A cleverly arranged program entertained at the meeting of the Midway City Woman's club Thursday afternoon, when the months of the year were represented in pantomime by individuals and groups as arranged by Mrs. Chester Campbell, program chairman. October was represented by Mrs. Charles A. Whitte as a witch; November had as its motif the Puritan maid, the parts being taken by two little girls, while December came in the form of Santa Claus as represented by Mrs. William Schmidt. January brought "Father Time," impersonated by Mrs. Whitson, while small Billy Johnson was the cunning "New Year." Three children in duffy red dresses brought the Valentine motif for February and March was cleverly represented by Mrs. J. P. Ward and Mrs. Ray Schureman, who were "Jiggs" and "Maggie" of comic strip fame. Mrs. Campbell, bearing the words "April Fool," stood for April and a group of children gave the May Pole dance as May representatives. June, the month of roses, was taken by Mrs. Harold Robertson as the charming bride. Mrs. P. A. Houlihan as the Statue of Liberty came upon the stage for July while the national anthem was sung. Children in swimming suits gathered under a big beach umbrella represented the month of August and the same group with school books sang "School Days" to represent September.

Plans for the club bazaar which is to be held December 8 were made at the business session while by-laws were talked over and other uncompleted business discussed.

Halloween decorations made the luncheon tables attractive and a fruit salad, coffee and wafers were served by the hostess committee, Mrs. Moore and Miss Amy Leith.

ARRIGO BOITO

By RUTH ANDREWS

Part II. Although since his death a little more than a decade ago, Boito has been widely acclaimed by musical authorities as one of the most important among Italian composers of the past generation, his reputation rests chiefly upon one work, his grand opera "Mefistofele," first produced by him at the La Scala theater in Milan, when he was only 26 years of age.

The revolutionary nature of this sensational work, conceived by the ardent young composer in a semi-Wagnerian style that brought forth both censure and praise from the critics, created such a furore in Milanese musical circles that it had to be withdrawn, following its second performance.

Seven years later "Mefistofele" was remodeled and greatly abbreviated, and again produced by Boito at Bologna on October 4, 1876, this time meeting with the warmest favor. Performances were given in Hamburg and Milan the following year. Since then it has been repeatedly given, always with great success, both on the Continent and here in America, where it met special favor when given at the New York Metropolitan, with the famous Russian basso, Chaliapin, in the title role.

Unusually original, colorful and spectacular, "Mefistofele" is dramatically effective throughout, marked by typical Italian fire and feeling. It is founded upon the famous poem "Faust" by the German poet Goethe, as was Gounod's opera, "Faust." In contrast to the more familiar Gounod work, Boito's opera attempts to cover the scope of the entire poem, exchanging continuity for picturesque episodes.

Much of Boito's active and versatile life was spent in journalistic work. He devoted much time to literary work, in which field he was equally fitted, being especially adapted for dramatic writing.

Not only did Boito write all his own librettos, but he won wide recognition writing the librettos for many operatic works, including Faccio's "Amleto" (1865), Ponchielli's "La Gioconda" (1876), and for Verdi's "Otello" (1888) and "Falstaff" (1893). Between the elderly Verdi and the more youthful and revolutionary Boito existed a warm friendship.

Boito also made various admirable translations of texts of works from the classic masters, Beethoven, Schumann and Schubert, as well as for Wagner's famous "Tristan und Isolde" and "Rienzi," his marked literary talent fitting him for such work.

In the realm of poetry this unusually gifted man also won high honors, having published a book entitled "Il Libro del Versi" at Turin in 1877, under the name of Tobia Gorrio. Most of these works were written in Boito's early twenties, for, indeed, he achieved recognition as a poet prior to his successes as a composer. Later, he also devoted some time to fiction writing.

In the field of musical composition, Boito's output was decidedly limited. In addition to "Mefistofele" and two cantatas of his student days, he composed an early opera, "Ero e Leandro," which was later lost, also his opera, "Nero," on which he worked over a period of 40 years; and "Orestide," still uncompleted at his death in 1918.

"Nero" was elaborately premiered at the La Scala in Milan, on May 1, 1874, six years after its composer's death, with the famous Toscanini conducting.

"Nero," despite its lurid plot, is considered a masterpiece of spectacular drama, excelling in the extravagance of its scenic effects. However, Boito is best known for his powerful "Mefistofele."

During his exceedingly active, versatile career, Boito held various honorary posts, including that of director of the Parma Conservatory, from 1889-97. He was also appointed inspector general of Italian Conservatories in 1892, and the following year received the degree of Doctor of Music from Cambridge University.

In 1895 Boito was honored by membership in the French Legion of Honor, while the Italian government evidenced its pride in him by advancing him through several grades of title, from the rank of "Cavaliere" and "Ufficiale" to that of "Comendatore" and finally "Senatore" in 1912, when he was 70 years of age.

The remainder of Boito's life was spent in Milan, the scene of his youthful triumphs. His death on June 10, 1918, at 76, terminated a career which had been active in furthering the musical life of Italy for more than a half century.

Boito is especially valuable for the inspirational influence his personality exerted upon the younger circle of contemporary Italian composers, as well as for the noble example which he set in cultural circles by his unswerving idealism and high conception of art in all its varied forms of expression.

OPEN L. A. SYMPHONY CONCERTS

Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra, conducted by Dr. Arturo Rodzinski, opened its 15th season of symphony concerts in Los Angeles Philharmonic auditorium on Thursday evening, October 22, and Friday afternoon, October 23, giving its 918th concert since its organization in 1919.

The famous ensemble was heard during its first pair of concerts this season in Brahms Second Symphony, Stravinsky's "Petrouchka" and the premiere Pacific coast performance of the "Birthday of the Infanta" by Franz Schrecker, contemporary Viennese composer and former teacher of Rodzinski, conductor of the Los Angeles orchestra.

The orchestra management announces an interesting list of soloists who will appear with the orchestra this season. Pianists will include Olga Steeb, Rudolph Ganz, Mischa Levitzki and Myra Hess. Violinists will include Efrem Zimbalist and Paul Kochanski; singers to appear during the series will include John Charles Thomas, Dusan Gjinjani and Rosette Anday, Hungarian contralto.

The Philharmonic orchestra of Los Angeles now numbers very close to 100 players, each an able artist and a well-versed ensemble performer. Many of these musicians are concert soloists of international reputation and conductors of marked ability.

Concertmaster Sylvain Noack and Second Concertmaster Svedofsky are assistant conductors of the orchestra; Ilya Bronson, first cellist, is the founder and director of the Los Angeles Symphony club; Alard de Ridder is conductor of the Vancouver Symphony orchestra, and makes the long trip to the Canadian city for each concert of the annual series there.

cisco, Stockton, Oakland and San Diego, before the opening of the Behymer Tuesday course next week on October 27.

On October 29 Mr. Tibbett will sing at the junior college auditorium in Pasadena, and on October 30 at the Pomona high school auditorium in Pomona, before going east for other concerts and the opening of his regular Metropolitan opera season in New York.

EAST

Eastern Orchestras Broadcast
The past fortnight has seen the opening of the concert season of two outstanding Eastern orchestras, the New York Philharmonic and the Philadelphia Symphony. The New York organization is under the direction of Erich Kleiber until November 14, when Kleiber will return to Berlin, where he is regular conductor of the state opera.

Arturo Toscanini, world famous Italian conductor, will then take his place, and be in charge of the New York Symphony until January 10, after which he will hand over the baton to Bruno Walter, who will have charge until the conclusion of the series in April, 1932.

Sunday broadcasts of these New York concerts are being made available for local enjoyment through KJL, Los Angeles, from 12 to 2 p. m.

Monthly historical concerts are also being broadcast this winter by the Philharmonic Orchestra under Leopold Stokowski, and opened over KJL on October 12. These concerts are being made available for local enjoyment through KJL, Los Angeles, from 12 to 2 p. m.

Expect Successful Season
A resume of the musical situation throughout the Eastern centers already indicates that an especially successful season will follow during the winter months despite the current economic depression. Cincinnati, Cleveland, Rochester, Indianapolis, St. Louis and many other large Eastern centers report an increase in advance seat sales over last year's records, indicating that musical enterprises will lead other entertainments this season in popularity.

CLAREMONT Open Artist Course

The opening concert in the new Mabel Shaw Bridges music auditorium, Claremont, will be given by the Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra next Tuesday, October 27. The concert will be held in the new building, costing $50,000, seats 2500 people. It is the gift of the late A. S. Bridges and Mrs. Bridges of San Diego.

The appearance of the orchestra in Claremont next Tuesday evening will be its first concert in the year outside of Los Angeles. Quite a number of Santa Ana citizens are planning to attend. The event is auspicious because it is the first of six great concerts of the Claremont College Artist Course, and because of the fact that the magnificent edifice constructed and dedicated to the cultural life of the region will be used for the first time for a musical event.

Sorority Opens Program Series
Anticipating an active and profitable season of study of various contrasting trends of contemporary music, as well as the works of leading composers of the present day, members of Phi Zeta sorority, local Greek letter society, enjoyed the initial meeting of this unique series, which was held in the parlors of the Santa Ana Conservatory of Music last Friday evening.

The interesting program dealt with modern French music and was in charge of Georgia Belle Walton. It emphasized the works of such well-known composers as Debussy, Ravel and Boulanger. Following a discussion of contemporary trends of French music given by Miss Walton, a musical program was enjoyed, including trombone selections offered by D. C. Clafonli, "Nuit d'Etoiles" and "Mandoline" by Claude Debussy, with Leonora Tompkins at the piano. Miss Walton's own exceptional talent as a violinist, found varied expression in a group of modern French selections, "La Fille Aux Crevaux de Lin" (Debussy), "Nocturne" (Boulanger) and "Menuet" (Ravel).

During the fall and winter months additional programs will feature works of contemporary Spanish, Italian, Russian, American and Scandinavian composers, and will be offered through the co-operation of Phi Zeta members.

BOOK REVIEWS

By MARY BURKE KING

The Story of Julian by Susan Eriz, published by D. Appleton and Company.

A delightful boy and girl love story runs through this book. The principals are Julian and Hildegard. Worked out through them is the deeper significance of the book. It is presented by contrasting Hildegard's home life with that of Julian. The latter's parents are estranged, though continuing to live together for the mother thinks that it will be better for Julian. She is a self-centered woman with a religious complex. She exacts from Julian the love and affection and sacrifice which she can longer inspire in her husband. Julian has no sense of security in his home. He feels no confidence that his parents will always be kind and sympathetic. He greatly admires his father but he is shocked and hurt when he discovers him in love with someone else.

Hildegard's home life is different. She is happy in her confidence in a world that is right or soon will be. She reflects the harmony of her parents. The book is well worth thinking about. It would not be doing justice to the author, however, to become so absorbed in the story that one missed the purpose.

Susan Spray, by Sheila Kaye-Smith, published by Harper Brothers.

This new book by the author of "Joanna Godden," "Three Against the World" and "Shepherds in Sackcloth" is quite worth reading. The story is of the middle nineteenth century in England, among the laboring people in Sussex. The poverty among people of that class at that time was terrible. The period has gone down in history as "the time of the Great Hunger." Flour and water puddings were the mainstay of the Spray family, and turnip soup was a reason for rejoicing.

Susan Spray was the oldest of eight children. At five she was hired out to a farmer. She plucked weeds and scared birds from the grain. Her two younger sisters, four and three, also brought in a penny a week for work on the farms. It was not strange that the death of the mother didn't bring great sorrow to the children for the kind neighbors sent in food and that week of sorrow was associated in their minds with the three best meals they had ever known.

Susan Spray had a lively imagination. Alone for long periods on the farm her mind worked on what it had to work on, which were the stories from the Book and the Lord. She became a religious fanatic. She reported to the Lord in the year; another time that she had seen a burning bush. It is an interesting study of human nature. Although Susan profited through convincing people, particularly the brethren of the Colgate church, that she was a seer of visions, that the Lord had revealed himself to her in a remarkable manner—profited so much that unkind folk were convinced that there was method in all her madness—yet Susan was sincere. It is a complexity of nature which one finds in a certain lady of this section. Susan was called a "darling humbug" by her second husband. She represented the appellation the more because she believed herself to be sincere. The book is an interesting character study—and seems to be based on sound, though unusual, psychology.

Stresemann, by Rudolf Olden, published by E. P. Dutton & Co. "Stresemann" can hardly be called a straightforward book. That characteristic may have been accentuated in translating. Nevertheless it is a fascinating study. A notable study could be made of Stresemann by a biographer who did not try to be matter of fact and one who emphasized the character of Stresemann rather than the politics of Germany. In Germany, contrary to the United States there are many political parties, and changes in political parties so that they represent many shades of opinion.

German government is an interesting study. The Germans are intelligent people. They pioneered in social legislation as early as Bismarck's period and their plans of old age pension, unemployment insurance, and benefits of various sorts have been in practice for years—long before we began to hear of the so-called "dole" of England. Germany for years has been working such benefits.

A reviewer a short time ago stated that Germany may have undertaken social benefits too soon following the war. Since the war it is true Germany has been forced, by the increase in unemployment to extend and re-vamp its plans for the relief of those out of employment. Its present plan is the more significant because it is predicated on pioneer experience in various types of social welfare and state responsibility for the victims of industrial growth.

One becomes fascinated as one peruses the book with the pending necessity for psychological change in the man Stresemann. He was a romanticist. A man with faith in royalty and in the military machine.

One of the most poignant passages is the following: "On October 1, 1918, Major von dem Busche by order of the Army Command addressed the party leaders: 'The resolution must be taken to regard the further prosecution of the war as useless. Every 24 hours the situation becomes worse and allows the enemy to recognize our real weakness.' All his hearers were dismayed. But an eye-witness tells us that the deputy Stresemann looked as if something had fallen upon him.' Yet Stresemann rallied from the shock which that incident epitomizes to be the strongest man in Germany in that country's darkest hours."

Book Notes....

"The Journal of Eugene Delacroix," never before translated into English, which was announced for publication by Coviel, Friede for November, has been postponed until the Fall of 1932, because a great deal of hitherto unknown material written by the famous 19th century French painter has recently been discovered. This new material fills many of the gaps left in the original edition, which was published in France in 1893. Delacroix was the leader of the romantic school of French painting and reputed to be the illegitimate son of Talleyrand. The complete translation of "The Journal," which is being done by Wallace Brackway, includes an introduction by Walter Pach and covers the last forty years of Delacroix's life from 1823 to 1863.

Lennox Robinson, author of "Ever the Twain" and a number of other plays published by Macmillan, will direct the famous Abbey Theater group of players on their tour of this country. The players recently arrived from Dublin.

Among the twelve plays to be given by this famous Irish company are Ervine's "John Ferguson," O'Casey's "Juno and the Paycock," Yates' "Cathleen ni Houlihan" and two of Mr. Robinson's own plays, "The White-haired Boy" and "The Far-Off Hills."

Nebuchadnezzar, by G. R. Taboris, with a preface by Gabriel Hanotaux of the French academy, which will be published by Whittey House on October 25, is the first modern biography of the conqueror of Jerusalem. Among the illustrations in the book is the only supposed portrait of Nebuchadnezzar, King Babylon, during one of the most tragic epochs of the remote past.

Susan Lennox: Her Fall and Rise, the famous novel by David Graham Phillips, is now appearing in dramatized form upon the talkie screen throughout the country. Greta Garbo is being starred in the title role by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. It is interesting to note that almost every nationality, race, creed and color on earth is represented in the polyglot gathering of "types" used in the South American waterfront scenes. There are nearly four hundred authentic Spaniards, Chinese, Lascars, Cubans, Negroes, West Indians, Portuguese, Germans, Russians, Mexicans, Filipinos, Swedes, Senegalese, Hindus, Malaysians, Tahitians, Hawaiians, Italians, and French.

Mr. Barnes sang as a solo, "You Smile at Dawn." This was followed by community singing and speeches. Mr. Barnes announced Monday would be teachers' visiting day and there would be no school. Refreshments were served in the cafeteria by the kindergarten mothers.

Poets of Southern California

By MISS BEULAH MAY

Julia Boynton Greene
A student of Wellesley and the Art Students' League of New York, Mrs. Greene has written almost since infancy. All her life she has appeared in prominent magazines and anthologies, and taken many prizes both in this country and England.

For many years she lived on an Orange ranch in San Bernardino, but now resides in Los Angeles. The following poem is taken from her recent book, "This Enchanting Coast," a collection of California poems:

AT SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO
By Julia Boynton Greene
The tawny hills lie sleeping in the sun.
Their shapely flanks hiraute with grasses. Blue,
Ah, blue as Eve's eyes when the world was new,
Paler than sapphire, tenderer than any one
Terrestrial pigment, lifts the sky,
as spun
A peerless tissue, in aerial looms.
These for the setting. Here are cloistral glooms,
Pensive and cool. The agile lizards run,
Oddly exempt by these four nimble feet
From that antipathy as old as man.
Around the ruined apse the swallows flit,
Small Mission mothers they, in service fleet;
The quaint gray nests follow each moulding's span,
And in the doorways round the fledgelings sit.

Art Notes....

A large California landscape by Marian Kavanagh Wachtel was purchased last week from the Burford galleries in Laguna Beach by Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Evans, prominent Anaheim art patrons. The oil painting will decorate the large living room of the Evans home on Lemon street.

A California art program featuring some of the most noted of the western painters will be given November 10 at the Grace Nicholson galleries in Pasadena. A lecture on California art accompanied by music by two Laguna artists will be followed by an easel exhibition. Interesting stories of the artists and the Laguna art colony will be given by Mrs. Fern Burford, who has spent the past six years studying art matters in "Our Village."

A one-man show of paintings by William A. Griffith is being planned as the first offering for the fall season at the Burford galleries. This will be followed by a show by Marian Kavanagh Wachtel and etchings by Arthur Miller.

The Mexican arts exhibit at the Los Angeles museum, Exposition park, has been attracting many visitors every day. It was opened on Tuesday, October 6, with a formal reception, at which time Dr. William Alanson Bryan, director of the museum, introduced Count Rene d'Harnoncourt as director of the exhibition. It closes tomorrow.

In a short address Count d'Harnoncourt paid tribute to the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow, under whose inspiration the collection was made. This exhibit was planned at the time of his ambassadorship to Mexico because Mr. Morrow felt that better understanding between the neighboring countries could be brought about by a showing of the arts. The Mexican ministry of education and the Carnegie corporation of New York have co-operated wholeheartedly. It has been circulated through the United States by the American Federation of Arts, opening a year ago at the Metropolitan museum. The exhibition embraces a resume of the arts and crafts of Mexico.

NEWS FROM THE AUTOMOBILE WORLD

DISCOVERIES MADE DURING WAR ARE USED

The American motorist gets greater value in three today partly as a result of discoveries brought out during the World War, according to Ed Pakenkopp, of the Pakenkopp service station U. S. tire dealer here.

"Greater wear is obtained," said Mr. Pakenkopp, "through use of anti-oxidants, which preserve the rubber from the deteriorating effects of air and exposure to sunlight was first applied to produce rubber for gas masks that would withstand contact with the air for a long period without deterioration. Some time ago, a supply of gas masks was inspected by the Army, and it was found that the rubber had deteriorated so that they were unsafe for use. This was due to oxidation of the rubber in its contact with air. When air and rubber from deteriorating effects of air, or slow burning, results. This can be noted by exposing an apple, which has been bitten into, to the air. In a few moments the part unprotected by the skin turns brown. This is oxidation, or slow burning of the tissues by the oxygen.

"A study of anti-oxidants by chemists connected with the rubber industry resulted in the development of anti-oxidants which, when mixed with rubber, preserve it from oxidation. As a result of this, tires today are much less affected by exposure, and their main wear is due to the contact with the road, adding many miles to the life of the tire."

FRANK A. BRADDOCK WITH REID MOTORS

Frank A. Braddock, well known automobile salesman in Orange county and representative of the Buick county agency for the past 11 years at Anaheim, has been transferred to Santa Ana and will work here in the future, according to an announcement made today by "Stormy" Gordon, Buick sales manager.

Braddock will have charge of the Reid Motor company's new used car division, located at Sixth and Bush streets, it was announced.

The new free-wheeling Hupmobile 100 horsepower straight eight gets its picture taken with the Pitrain Autogiro that landed on the Whitehouse lawn and in which Amelia Earhart broke the world's altitude record. On the right is Emory Bonte, aviation manager for Associated Oil company and navigator of the first civilian hop to Hawaii; and on the left, Allan Greer, manager for Greer-Robbins, California Hupmobile distributors. Pilot Claude A. Owens, who appears above, recently flew the 'giro to the San Francisco Municipal Airport, where many interested spectators witnessed its odd performance.

BATTERY CALLED ON 2,200 TIMES PER YEAR TO START CAR, HUBERT BOWN FINDS

"Making surveys of this and that seems quite a fashion nowadays," said Mr. Hubert Bown of Goodyear Service, Inc., local Exide battery distributor, "but much information of practical value can be obtained.

"For instance," he continued, "a survey was made by the manufacturers of Exide batteries to find out approximately how many times a year the average motorist calls on his battery to start his car.

"The information obtained was highly interesting. It was found that the average was 2,200 times a year. That means that the average automobile battery discharges a current at a high rate about this number of times depending of course on the use to which the car is put by its owner. "This information is of value in many ways. It emphasizes the necessity of keeping a watchful eye on one's battery from time to time, especially at the beginning of cold weather.

"In cold weather," Mr. Bown continued, "the engine is harder to turn and the efficiency of any battery, regardless of its make, is lower. Accordingly, a battery that has been working all right during the warm weather may not be in condition to stand an increased load with lowered efficiency.

"In warm weather a battery can be in a pretty poor condition and yet be capable of turning over an engine, but when cold nights and mornings come, the weakness in batteries begins to appear, usually catching the motorist unawares.

Sleeping At Wheel Causes Many Deaths

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 24.—Drivers who fell asleep at the wheel from sheer exhaustion or other causes were responsible for 238 accidents in California involving injury and death within the last seven months, the California highway patrol announced today.

The increase in accidents of this character, it was stated, is causing officials of the patrol considerable concern inasmuch as this is one of the most difficult acts of a driver to control.

Records of the patrol show accidents of this type for the first seven months of this year have already exceeded the number of such accidents during the full year 1930. Thirty-nine of these accidents resulted in fatalities while 199 others resulted in injuries.

Analysis of the accidents by the bureau of statistics of the patrol indicates that most of them occurred to drivers of trucks and other commercial vehicles. In nearly every such case it was found that the driver had been required by his employer to drive for excessively long periods without rest.

Several cases were found in which truck drivers had been required to work from 24 to 36 hours consecutively without sleep. One case was reported in which a driver was compelled to drive a heavy truck from Los Angeles to Eureka without adequate rest.

The bureau's investigations disclose a tendency on the part of pleasure car drivers to attempt week end and holiday trips that are entirely too long for the time available thus increasing the danger that the driver will fall asleep at the wheel on his return trip home.

The condition has been made the subject of a special report to E. Raymond Cato, chief of the patrol, who is bringing the matter to the attention of commercial organizations interested in trucking operations.

DE SOTO CARS ARE ASSEMBLED IN PROPER WAY

A car may be put together tightly, with everything in its proper place and with all nuts and bolts drawn up their correct amount, and still be poorly assembled, according to P. C. Sauerbrey, vice-president and operating manager of the De Soto Motor corporation.

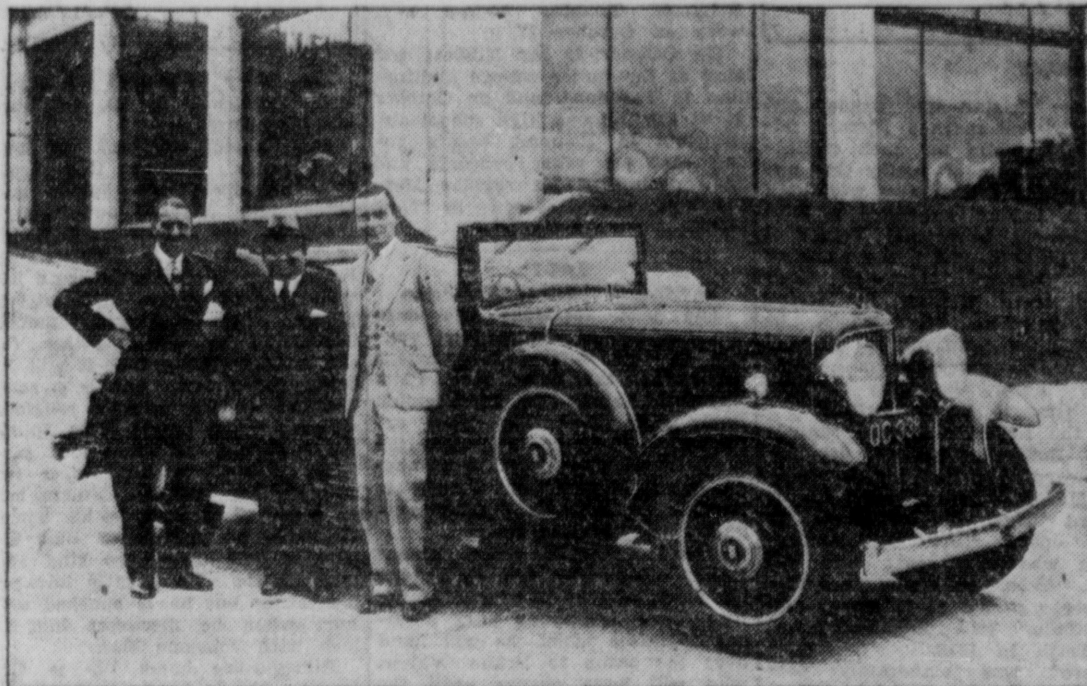

"A car that is perfectly assembled," says Mr. Sauerbrey, "is one in which each part is not only designed for the work it has to do, but is so mounted in the chassis that it is ready to do that work in the best possible manner."

Take the matter of the rubber insulated spring mountings on De Soto cars. Instead of merely inserting these in place and tightening the nuts which hold them in place, the method used at the De Soto factory goes much further than this.

A device has been arranged to depress the springs to a flat position. On this there is a frame carrying two pneumatically operated plungers, each of which is capable of exerting a pressure of 1272 pounds. Each of these is applied to the spring which has been mounted on the chassis. The plunger exerts its first force at the center of the spring and the pressure is sufficient to bring the spring to a flat position. The combined force of the two plungers is 2544 pounds. Two men operate the device simultaneously.

"conceded that doubling the speed of any car without shifting gears results in four times as many destructive forces to the engine. Destructive forces are the pressures that cause wear exerted on moving parts such as pistons, connecting rods, valves, etc. A saving of 600 revolutions a minute in engine speed often cuts destructive forces in half, and vastly increases engine life."

MOTORISTS ARE ASKED NOT TO APPLY FOR NEW 1932 NUMBERS UNTIL AFTER DECEMBER 1ST

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 24.—Motor car owners of California were asked today by Russell Bevans, registrar of the department of motor vehicles to wait until December 1st before mailing in applications for 1932 license plates.

Several hundred applications have already been received at this early date, Bevans said, although it is unlikely that any plates will be mailed out until after Christmas.

Such applicants not only cause extra work in the removal of files, but are also deprived of their certificates of registration for several weeks inasmuch as the certificate is mailed in when the application is filed.

Bevans explained it was the plan of the department to receive applications by mail on and after December 1st and to open the counters for delivery to the public on December 15th.

"But no sooner," he added. The manufacturer is now engaged in making the 1932 plates and is delivering them as rapidly as possible.

The fee will be the same as this year. In addition to the information required in former years, the applicant must give the serial number of his car and number of cylinders.

CHICAGO COPS DEPEND ON NEW NASH SERVICE

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 24.—(Special)—Speed, dependability and economy—three essentials of mobile police equipment—have marked the flashing performance of the twenty new Nash twin-ignition eight sedans, placed in detective bureau service during July by the Chicago Police department, according to John Norton, veteran Chicago chief of detectives and international figure in crime detection and prevention.

Reviewing the operation of the new flying squad cars, which feature the new Nash synchro-safety-shift transmissions with silent second speed, and sound-proofed bodies and chassis, he declared that their ease of handling in heavy traffic and their comfortable riding qualities have proved to be outstanding advantages in the exacting work they are called upon to do.

"Our roving detective squads have commented favorably on the new equipment," he said, "and we have found the cars both economical and efficient. Personally, I liked the new car so well after using one of the squad machines a day or two that I have purchased the same type of Nash sedan for my own use."

The new Nash cars, equipped with short-wave radio sets and complete detective armament, are assigned to roving duty in various parts of the city. Constantly in touch with detective headquarters through the radio orders, the fly-

JOHN SILVER IS BACK AFTER TRIP IN HUPMOBILE

From Hollywood to Dublin by automobile—and steamer. That was the enjoyable trip recently completed by John Silver, motion picture cameraman and Hupmobile enthusiast.

Silver, whose home was in the Irish Free State, was advised against the trip by his friends, according to a letter received here by Bob Redall, general manager for Greer-Robbins, California Hupmobile distributors. Hundreds of obstacles, real and imaginary, were pointed out to him. "You'll just be wasting time and money," they said. "You'd better go the usual way."

The cameraman, whose job requires him to do the unusual, was not to be restrained, however. "I've made up my mind, and I'm going," he told them.

"The trip was a perfect cinch," Silver reported. "I was gone six months and the way my Hupmobile performed amazed me.

"I experienced no mechanical

WOMEN BECOME INTERESTED IN TIRE PURCHASES

Who buys the "back-seat insurance" on America's automobiles? It's the woman driver in a surprisingly large number of cases, a nation-wide survey has revealed.

Day in and day out, a very large proportion of the cars in which children occupy the back-seats are driven by women—mothers taking pupils to and from school, mothers taking youngsters of pre-school age on daily errands and calls.

Women buy about half the automobiles that are sold and drive them more than half of the time and they buy from one-third to one-half of the gasoline, oil and service, it has been estimated.

Lately, many thousands of women have become "safety-conscious." They have been asking, "What is it that keeps a car on the road when the surface is slippery or when one has to stop in a hurry in an emergency?" They have found the answer to be: "Tires that can safely be run at low pressure so that the rubber will grip and cling to the road."

Thus, good tires, safe tires, constitute for them "back-seat insurance" to protect the little ones who are perched so confidently in the back of the car. Consequently, women drivers are more and more demanding tires that have been proved to be skid-proof and blow-out proof.

Based on an average of 1,80 drivers for each of the 26,000,000 cars now in operation, there are about 11,000,000 women drivers today and they actually own and operate nearly 4,000,000 cars. Thus, nearly 16 percent of the cars on the road are actually owned by women, most of whom must decide on the kind of tires they will drive on.

trouble of any kind and very little tire trouble. The trip from Hollywood to New York over the Santa Fe trail was made leisurely in eight and a half days. Some bad roads in New Mexico gave my new Century Six Cabriolet her real taste under fire, because we pounded into a lot of deep chuck holes with such terrific force that I marvelled how the car could stand up under such a beating.

"Two hours before sailing time I reached the White Star dock and changed my car over to an auto club representative who stored it aboard the Adriatic. I was surprised that the expense of taking the car was only slightly more than the cost of a single passage. On arriving at Liverpool I found my car waiting for me on the dock, completely serviced."

CHRYSLER MAN EXPLAINS TERM 'PERFORMANCE'

As soon as motorists realize that the term "performance" includes not only speed and acceleration but also economy, smoothness, quietness and long life, the complex problems of automotive engineering will be fully appreciated, according to J. B. Macauley, chief engineer of Chrysler Sales corporation.

"There is a marked trend in engineering circles to place the emphasis on economy and smoothness, not at the expense of speed or acceleration, but in addition to those features," said Mr. Macauley. "And by economy, we mean fuel and oil saving and long engine life. This, together with smoothness were the reasons why the four-speed transmission with dual high gears was designed by Chrysler engineers for the Chrysler Imperial Eight and Chrysler De Luxe Eight models.

"When accelerating it is generally

COUNTY URGED TO PARTICIPATE IN WATER MEET

Orange county groups interested in statewide water plans and problems are expected to send representatives to the meeting of the legislative water committee scheduled for November 3 at Riverside. Assemblyman Ted Craig, of Brea, announced the schedule of the committee's meeting here yesterday. He is a member of the committee.

The committee will make recommendations to the next legislature as to a state-wide water program. Thursday night at the meeting of Orange county groups and organizations are expected to name committees or representatives to attend the Riverside meeting.

Craig said the legislative committee is charged with agreeing on a state plan so that the constitution may be amended at a proposed special session of the legislature this winter and immediate steps be taken to save portions of the state that are fast going back to desert, especially in the San Joaquin valley region.

As to Orange county's status, the best to be hoped for, Craig said, would be for the state to take over the flood control problem on the Santa Ana river, costing about $10,000,000, and the county in turn endorsing the state note of possibly $600,000,000.

"From a dollars and cents standpoint it would be much better for the county to go it alone, but from the standpoint of saving portions of our state, and indirect benefits, it might be better for the county to support a state-wide plan," he said.

Craig declared that he was desirous of carrying out the wishes of the county on the water problem and urged all Orange county people possible to attend the Riverside meeting. Other meetings will be held on November 2 at San Diego and in Los Angeles on November 4 and 5.

EASTERN PRICE EGGS AFFECTS LOCAL MARKETS

Eggs produced in Southern California are sold on a world wide market, thus the New York and Chicago prices affect prices here. It was pointed out by H. W. Amelung, manager of the Poultrymen's Co-operative association of Southern California, with headquarters in Los Angeles, in an interview last night at the meeting of the Orange county poultry department, held in Garden Grove.

He said that the egg market was fairly firm but that the fall of four cents on the New York market, due to the slow consumption of storage eggs, would eventually be felt here.

Orange county, while not among the largest egg producing centers, contributes a sizable portion of the $12,000,000 received from the poultry business in Southern California each year, Amelung stated.

Recent state legislation providing that articles sold on the market which make use of foreign eggs must be so marked, which is to go into effect November 1, will curtail the use of Chinese dried eggs, it was declared. At present an emergency tariff of nine cents a pound is levied against the imports.

Two Orange county poultrymen are on the board of directors of the association. W. C. Childers, Santa Ana, is chairman of the executive board and Herman Reinau, Costa Mesa, is secretary.

Thieves broke into the Gillis Service station at Los Alamitos Thursday night and stole six automobile tires and tubes, worth $100, according to a report made to the sheriff's office.

S. P. TO CLOSE BROADWAY AND FOURTH OFFICE

Announcement was made here today that on Monday, Southern Pacific offices maintained at the corner of Fourth and Broadway for the past five years will be closed and the entire personnel of the traffic department moved to the Southern Pacific station on East Fourth street.

The change, according to officials of the railroad who announced discontinuance of the downtown office, is due to the continued decrease in railroad revenues due to present business conditions. They said that when business conditions again reach normal the office will be re-opened.

Closing of the office will not mean a cut in the personnel, officers of the company said. S. W. Sala, city ticket agent, will be transferred, probably to Santa Barbara and other members of the staff will be moved to the traffic department's new location.

Under the plan for operation, L. B. Valla, district freight and passenger agent, will be in charge of all freight traffic business and E. B. Sharpley, traveling passenger agent, will be in charge of the passenger traffic business.

COURTS GRANT TWO DIVORCES FRIDAY

Two divorces were granted in superior court yesterday. Judge H. G. Ames granted an interlocutory decree to Grace Jackson, whose complaint accused Jesse Jackson of desertion and failure to provide.

Judge James L. Allen issued an interlocutory decree to Lawrence M. Myers from Helen H. Myers. The complaint said the defendant disliked housework and called Myers an old man and a dead one because he didn't want to go out to dances at night. They were married in 1919 and separated on April 1, 1931.

Both cases were default actions.

50 BOY SCOUTS GIVEN REWARDS FOR HARD WORK

Merit badge awards and class badges were presented to about 50 Boy Scouts of the Santa Ana and Tustin districts at the court of honor proceedings held last night in the Elks clubhouse. The attendance of 200 Boy Scouts and 200 friends and parents made this one of the largest courts held in Santa Ana in years.

All honors of the evening were taken by troop 29, sponsored by the Santa Ana American Legion post. Troop members were awarded the largest number of merit badges entitling them to a plaque, and they also had the largest number of parents and friends present winning another trophy.

Troop 30, sponsored by the Elks, contested closely with troop 29 for the trophy. The Elks troop had present 21 visitors to 22 for the American Legion troop. Fred Faber is scoutmaster of both troops.

Presents Eagle Badge
The climax of the evening came when Reynold Bullock, troop 30, was presented with his Eagle badge by J. R. Burke. Burke spoke on the training received in scouting, and commended Bullock on winning Eagle honors, the highest possible in scouting.

"An Eagle scout will be no misfit in life," Burke said. "The broad field of knowledge opened up for him in scouting and the insight into vocations supplies him with an appreciation of the work that he chooses to follow," he stated.

The Rev. Harry Owings, pastor of the First Baptist church, also addressed the assemblage. He discussed the unfolding progress that the Boy Scout achieves in scoutcraft.

Besides the award of the plaque and trophy to troop 29, the prize won in the district swimming meet in Santa Ana August 18, was presented to the troop.

At the opening of the meeting, the colors were presented by troop 27, under Scoutmaster Forrest C. Whitson. The flag salute and scout laws were led by Jack Pequeas, troop 30. Harrison White, county scout executive, conducted the roll call, with all 15 troops responding.

Other Awards
A tenderfoot badge was presented to Barney Spicer by Hubert L. Bown, of the court of honor committee. E. E. Steffensen gave out the second class badges, and Judge J. B. Tucker the first class badges. Fred Rowland awarded the merit badges and County Executive White presented the life badges.

By special arrangements, Macauley Roop of troop 10, Laguna Beach, was awarded two merit badges entitling him to his eagle scout badge at the next court of honor. He led the troops in the scout laws and William Beasley, scoutmaster of troop 26, led the scoutmaster's benediction in the closing.

The arrangements for the court of honor were completed by W. K. Hillyard, chairman. One of the visitors was Tex Middleton, of Anaheim, chairman of the court of honor for that district. Frank Treadwell, scoutmaster of troop 95, Fullerton, brought his entire troop of 25 here to witness the court of honor proceedings.

Police News

Kathryn Burns, of 4171-1/2 North Main street, reported to the police last night that her automobile was stolen from a place where she left it parked, near Fifth and Main streets.

Police Officer And Bride Return

Patrolman Paul Cozad and his bride, formerly Miss Juanita Gilbert, have returned to Santa Ana after an automobile honeymoon which carried them through nine states, including Nevada, Utah, Wyoming, Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico and Arizona. The distance covered was some 4500 miles.

Now back in Santa Ana they will reside at 1214 Lacy street temporarily, they announced. While on their trip, they visited at the Zion National Park, Carlsbad Caves and stayed several days in Salt Lake City and at Oklahoma City, visiting relatives and friends at the latter place.

Mr. and Mrs. Cozad were married at Riverside on September 28.

GET JAIL TERMS ON GUILTY PLEAS

Walter Brown, who had pleaded guilty to a fictitious check charge, and Tony Carlos who had admitted his guilt on a second degree robbery accusation, received one year each in the county jail yesterday when their probation hearings were held before Superior Judge James L. Allen.

Brown was placed on probation for three years. He will work at the county park and at the expiration of his jail term will be released to the custody of Judge Chris Pann, of Huntington Beach. Carlos was given the same probationary term and also will work at the park.

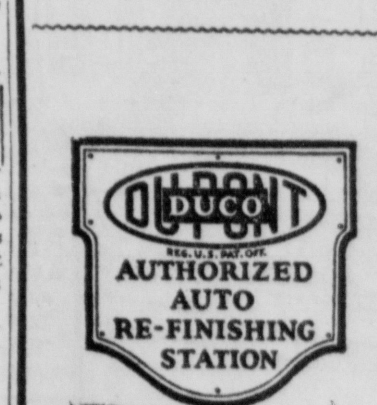

William M. Land, who was arraigned on a charge of issuing a bank check with intent to defraud, pleaded not guilty and will be tried on November 16.

Harlow Faced With 2nd Liquor Charge

... Bail bonds in the amount of $3500 were filed yesterday before Judge John Landell by Mrs. Marie Tulos and Harold B. Mitchell, of Doheny Park, for H. Harlow, charged yesterday by the district attorney with liquor possession, and two prior convictions.

Harlow, who was arrested with his wife, on August 24, by Sheriff Logan Jackson and Deputy District Attorney S. B. Kaufman, on a charge of liquor possession, appeared before Judge Landell Thursday, and was released from this charge, only to have another immediately filed against him. Two prior convictions of liquor possession have been recorded against him, one in the Santa Ana courts, and one in Judge Landell's court, where he was fined $400 last summer. He will appear for trial November 2.

AUTO SUPPLY OFFERS TUBES WITH PURCHASE

As a special inducement to automobile owners who will need new tires before the winter season, to buy them right now, the Western Auto Supply company is offering an inner tube free of charge with every Western Giant or Wear-Well tire sold before October 31st, according to their local manager, Jack Campbell.

"This is the only free tube offer that will be made the rest of this year," states Campbell. "It has been in effect for several days and old as well as new customers are taking advantage of the unusual savings this offer presents. Although Western Giant and Wear-Well tires are now being sold at the lowest prices in Western Auto history, this free tube offer increases the savings by 15 to 25%.

"The prices of Western Giant and Wear-Well tires have not been increased to cover the cost of the tube, but are being sold at our regular low, catalog prices. Every tire and tube sold carries the full Western Auto guarantee of satisfaction.

"Every 6-ply Western Giant tire has, in addition to the six full plies extending from bead to bead, one extra cushion strip and one double strength breaker strip, which is equivalent to 3 plies under the tread. The 4-ply Western Giant and Wear-Well tire has one extra cushion strip and one thick cushion breaker strip, which is equivalent to 6 plies under the tread.

GOETZ JAILED AS DRUNKEN DRIVER

Members of the Santa Ana police squad arrested Rudy D. Goetz, 30, of 2701 South Main street yesterday, lodging him in the county jail on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

The Goetz car was traveling south on Main street at the time, it was reported and the arrest was made at South Main and Pomona streets.

Goetz was recently arrested here during the county wide liquor raid on a charge of possession of liquor and was sentenced to serve six months in the county jail on the count.

At the time of his arrest last night he was out on bail of $2000 pending his appeal of the possession case to the superior court.

THE TINYMITES
STORY BY HAL COCHRAN — PICTURES BY KNICK
REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

Said Clowry, "Wait! I'll get some string and then we'll see a funny thing. A kitten loves to play until it's tied up in a knot." He ran into a nearby store and got what he went in there for. Then Clowry took the kitten from the friendly little tot.

He spread the string out on the ground and started whirling it around. The kitten sneaked up slowly and then took one real long leap. "Look out!" cried Scooby. "He will take a real good hold. The string will break. We'll shortly have him all tired out and then he'll want to sleep."

They soon found out his guess was right. The kitten raced with all its might and then ran up the small girl's dress and started in to purr. She held it close and said, "We must be moving on ahead." And so the girl said, "Goodbye," and they tipped their hats to her.

"I'm just as thirsty as can be," cried Coppy. "Who will come with me and find a place to get a drink?" "That's easy," answered one. "I saw a well a block or so back down this street. That's where we'll go. It has long-handled dippers. Drinking from them will be fun."

They reached the well and saw a sight that tickled every Tiny-mite. A woman with a baby on her back was standing near. "They come for water every day," explained the Travel Man. "And say, just watch the way she totes that jug when she is leaving here."

She filled her jug up to the top and didn't spill a single drop. And then she put it on her head and started down the street. "She sure can balance," Carpy said. "You'd think that that would hurt her head." They then waved to the baby and it smiled back very sweet.

Young Imps And Wise Parents

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"PHILIP," said Mr. Jones sternly. "I don't want to hear any reports of you this year as I did last. You've got to behave yourself."

"What do you mean, Pop?"

"Just what I say, and I don't need to tell you. I think it cost me somewhere around fifteen dollars to square up for the chickens you let out of Mr. Johnson's coop, the tar you put on Squire Muntz's front steps, the gold fish you took out of Mrs. Miner's fountain and the window you broke in Goldman's drug-store."

"I didn't do it all, Pop."

"I know. If you had it would have cost a great deal more. Fortunately for me it was a sort of partnership affair and I only had to pay a third. But this year you stay at home and study your lessons on Hallowe'en. You forfeited all right to a good time by your behavior last year."

"Can I have a party, then?"

"Party! No, you won't have a party. That costs money, too."

"Oh, Ben, why not? He wanted to have a party last year and you wouldn't let him; you see what happened then. A party wouldn't cost much. I can fix him up a clown suit out of nothing, and a few nuts and apples and taffy wouldn't cost more than a movie."

"That's right, try to ruin my discipline. When I say 'No' I mean 'No.' He can't go out and he can't have a party."

ON Hallowe'en night Mr. Jones did not spend a quiet evening, as he had expected. Tick-tacks, stamps and hoots sounded first on the front porch and then on the back. Someone tied the doorknob to a porch post and he couldn't get out to investigate. When he went out the back way a flower pot precariously balanced on the transom ledge just missed his head.

The garbage can, the porch chairs, and the swing had been brought in, but the garage worried him.

By the alley light he could see the side windows, but one back window on the alley was out of his range. He went out quickly to assure himself that all was right. It was not. The window was broken, and up part way.

Unlocking the door hastily he went in. His spick and span little black car was smeared from bumper to bumper with white paint! Cold rage suddenly seized him. Who would dare to do such a vicious thing? To him!

He walked into the house, white to the lips. "Philip!" he said, "put on your hat and go out and do whatever you like. I don't care what you do—you can burn or steal, or ruin anything you like."

"Ben, have you gone crazy? What's the matter?"

"Go on," said Mr. Jones grimly.

"But, Pop, I don't want to do any of those things. I just wanted to—"

"Go on!"

Philip crept out. Half way up Clover street he suddenly came upon two figures crouching along in the shadow of a hedge. Hank and Zeke, whom he had scarcely seen for a year! In Hank's hand was a white can.

Just then four men stepped out in front of them. Three collared the three boys while another blew a whistle.

"NOW do you believe me, Pop?"

"Yes, Philip. I do. Circumstantial evidence is bad business."

"The best way is to keep boys busy," suggested Mrs. Jones. "Next year we'll give a real party, a taffy-pull or something, won't we?"

"You bet," said Mr. Jones heartily. "I've just about decided that most street mischief comes of too little fun at home. But don't wait a year. Son, you can have a party whenever and as often as you like. Tomorrow if you want."

Throwing a Party For Hallowe'en Ghosts

HALLOWE'EN without a party is as empty as a dark alley without a cat.

If you are wise you will open your door and let the spooks and goblins gather. It is much better to do it this way than have them whispering at the windowpane all night long.

Get some black paper and write your invitations in white ink. Accidentally leave a blot of red ink some place. It is more ghastly. And that is what you want.

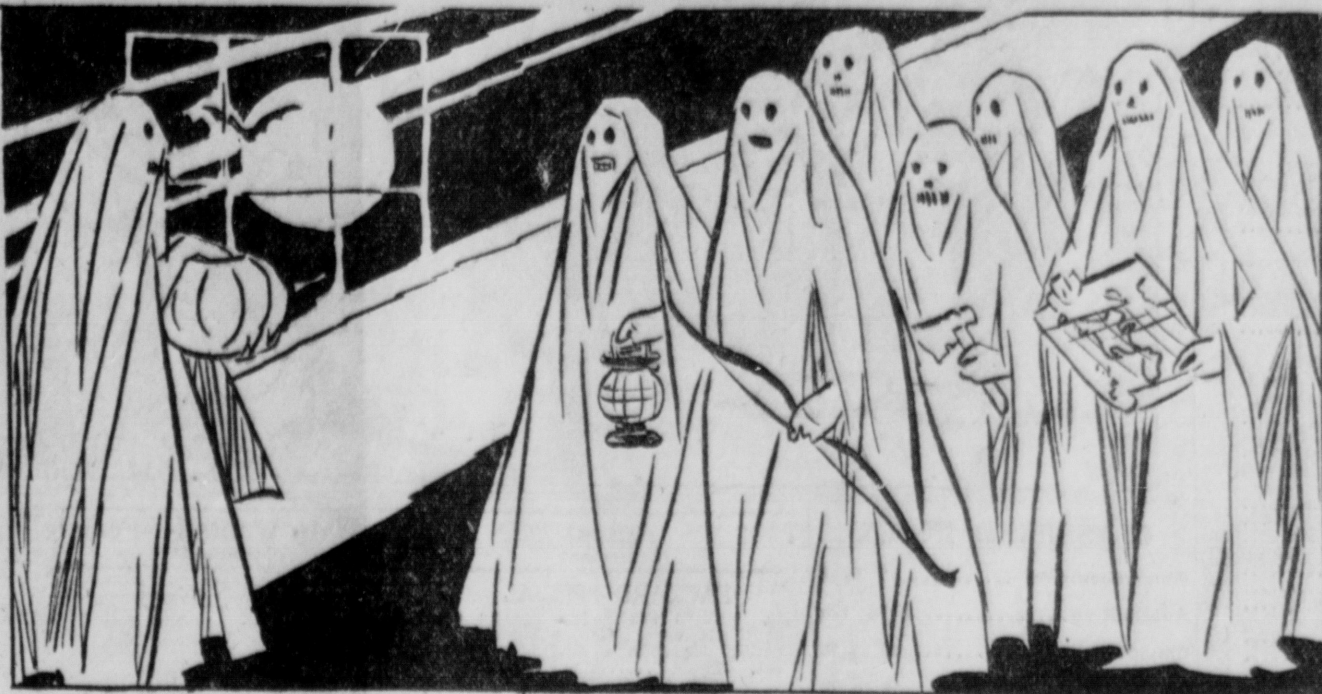

Each invitation will be different than any other, for you should suggest to each guest the kind of a ghost you want him to be. All ghosts should come arrayed in gray dominoes. You may provide them if you want to. But each should bring with him some object to show whom he is trying to represent.

You will have a scene as weird as the one where the witches met on the moor when Shakespeare caught the Hallowe'en spirit, if you place black masks over your wall lights, and dress your lamps as ghosts. Make skeletons out of broomsticks and let them appear, small red lights above them, in unexpected windings of the stair or turns in the hall.

Your guests will be in the proper spirit by the time they reach the ghost chamber, a dim, spooky room hung with silence signs. The page who has shown them in will give each one a pencil and witch-bordered card from a pumpkin that she carries, asking them to identify all the ghosts they know.

You may suggest to one guest that he come as Diogenes with a pumpkin lantern, which he turns in everybody's face as he searches for an honest man. Columbus should be included, with a map in his hand. Sir Walter Raleigh and Queen Elizabeth can pull off the famous street scene by using a coat for the velvet cloak on which the queen walked. Carrie Nation will be recognized by her hatchet. Robin Hood's bow and arrow will give him away, and William Tell could easily balance an apple on somebody's head.

Don't forget fortune telling. Dress a witch in black, make seamy lines on her face with grease paint, and put her in a corner with a misty gray veil floating between the seeker after facts and the witch.

There should be a slit for the guest's hand to pass through the veil. People are always much more interested in whether they are going to meet tall dark men or red-headed girls than they are in bobbing for apples or anything else you may include in your entertainment. You'll find this stunt very popular.

Jumping over a broom, with a prize for the highest jumper, is always successful. In disguise people aren't afraid to be natural. Human nature works that way.

Suspend a 12-inch stick horizontally from the ceiling, with a piece of soap fastened to one end and an apple to the other, and revolve the stick. The players should try to bite the apple, not the soap. But they won't succeed.

You might have a stunt feature. Give each one a miniature broomstick, with some instructions on it. Numbers will put the guests in groups, each of which must silently perform a feat of some sort. Ghostly guests are quite inventive.

If you have windows through which street lights shine, you can create the illusion of a moon, stars, a fence with a cat walking along the pickets, or a tree with an owl, through the use of dark paper.

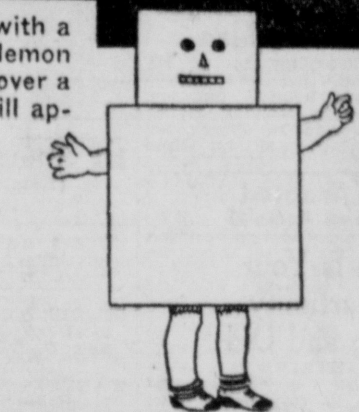

For refreshments serve cider. Your guests expect it. Doughnuts, too, and pumpkin pie. A party that goes in for elaborate salads and concoctions doesn't have the Hallowe'en spirit.

Make open-face sandwiches and decorate them so they look like the faces of cats and owls and goblins. Cheese, creamed to a paste, makes a very nice complexion. Apple butter will do for hair, or for the face if you want a few black gnomes. Cherries, currants, or chocolates make eyes and features. Red candy will make a mouth. Shining green glass beads do a lot to a cat's face when used as eyes.

Be sure that you have enough sandwiches, pie and so on, for it is surprising how hungry even ghosts can be.

The Very Idea . . . . . By Lois Gilbert

write your fortunes with a steel pen dipped in lemon juice . . . hold paper over a flame and writing will appear.

two pasteboard boxes . . . one big and one little . . . will turn a Hallowe'en child into a "mechanical man" like this.

adhesive tape will nicely cover that hole in your shoe lining.

A New Hallowe'en Cake

Eating Around America

By Gaynor Maddox

THERE'S a salt pork cake in Syracuse that is just as important to the good life in America as Syracuse University, itself. And this cake recipe, brought from Minnesota by the wife of a learned professor of chemistry, was invented for eating on Hallowe'en.

Ramble along the now flaming streets of Syracuse and fragrant odors will greet you from the handsome white houses under the venerable trees. You will be certain to catch the fragrance of cream soups that always have fresh peas or some other fresh vegetable bobbing about in them.

And of course, all that part of the country is famous for its frogs legs dinners. They use small legs, roll them in cracker meal batter and then fry them in unsalted butter.

Salt pork cake is not only grand stuff to eat, but it is easy on father's purse and lasts a long time. Here is the Syracuse recipe that makes two loaves:

Weigh one pound of salt pork free of rind. Chop it very fine, then pour one pint of strong black coffee over it. Simmer for 10 minutes. Remove from fire and add these things: Four cups of brown sugar, one and one-half teaspoon of nutmeg, one tablespoon of cinnamon, one tablespoon of allspice and one teaspoon of salt. Sift together five cups of flour and one teaspoon of baking soda. Beat all together.

Next come the citron and currants to add holiday flavor. Chop one pound of citron. Use one-half pound of clean currants. Dust these with flour to prevent them from sinking to the bottom of the cake. Add to the batter and beat well. Line two bread tins with evenly greased paper and then pour in the cake batter. Bake in a slow oven for an hour and a quarter.

Of course, you will serve spiced cider with this. So jump in the car and go out in the country and bring back a demijohn of sweet apple cider. To spice it, use this old English recipe still popular around the Finger Lakes.

Mix one gallon of cider with the following: One and one-half pounds brown sugar, 6 two-inch pieces of cinnamon, one tablespoon whole cloves, one tablespoon allspice, two pieces of whole mace, one-half teaspoon of salt and just a dash of cayenne.

Bring to the boiling point, then boil for 15 minutes. This is a grand drink for a blustery night, when the witches and goblins are tearing around the house and the salt pork cake is piled high on the table.

Hallowe'en around Syracuse is something to think about. Now that you know how it is celebrated there, you can have your own night of witches with as much success.

Beauty Without Sports

By CHARLOTTE C. WEST, M. D.

THE beauty business would certainly get an awful jolt if every girl made it her business to go in for daily systematic exercise in one form or another.

When a girl finds that by deep conscious breathing she is able to bring her circulation to the surface, so imparting to her cheeks a natural bloom, she no longer resorts to the rouge pot.

When she finds that purposeful walking and a few well directed exercises keep her eyes dewy, her hair brilliant, her figure young and pliant, she will have less and less occasion to resort to artificial means of beautification.

By the time maturity is reached, if the body has not been systematically exercised, the blood is filled with impurities which seriously interfere, not only with the system's proper functioning, so giving rise to various ailments, but with the beauty of the face and form.

To counteract these conditions, health institutes have sprung up on all sides, equipped with every possible device for exercising the body systematically. Under expert medical supervision, every tissue can be subjected to just the kind of physical training required to stimulate these into normal activity.

The mechanical horse, for example, puts the rider through the lope, canter, gallop, and so on, whereby the muscles and internal organs receive precisely the same benefits—minus the fresh air and joy of the outdoors—as from a live mount.

If you haven't the time, the energy, or the ability to remove local fat in spots where a collection of adipose tissue ruins your figure, resort to a mechanical belt run electrically, the vibrations of which can be adapted to your particular needs.

Overweight is one of the most common conditions treated by synthetic exercises of various kinds. Fat is removed from the body by way of the pores: the subject is put through a series of hot air treatments, either dry air, as in bakings, or moist air, as in Turkish and vapor baths.

The very obese have usually taxed their hearts by the extra baggage they have been carrying and so one must avoid sudden shocks to the system which would affect the heart.

Synthetic massage—that is, massage given by means of pads electrically applied—is a favorite form of treatment given for obesity; it breaks up the fat cells, which are thus carried out of the system through active elimination further induced by forceful breathing of ozonated air.

Headache, sluggishness of the liver, inertia of the entire alimentary tract, resulting in various unpleasant manifestations, will yield to a course of mechanical rowing, after which you can plunge into a delightful pool of chlorinated water, crystal clear, and be given a swim.

ETHELDA BLEIBTREY, one of the greatest swimmers, devised a swimming harness very simply for home use.

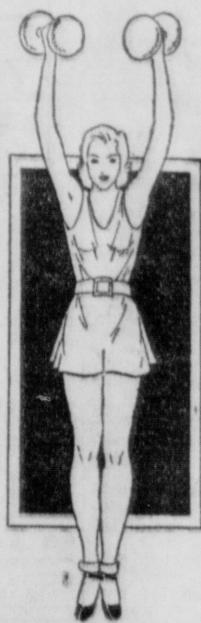

A canvas bodice was fitted over her bathing suit. The bodice was suspended from the ceiling about two feet from the floor by means of a rope passed through a loop at top and bottom of the bodice. The feet are held by a canvas loop attached to a spring on the ceiling.

Thus, securely suspended in air, you can practice the movements and swim synthetically or vicariously to your heart's content.

This method of exercising the body, by the way, will strengthen and give tone to soft, unused muscles, will give courage to the timid and give you confidence to swim unassisted.

Sunlight is a wonderful provision of nature which has a life-saving influence. The ultra violet rays have a wonderful effect on the blood vessels and nervous system. In cases of anemia, in pallid, listless, half-alive girls, these rays, when properly applied, increase the red blood corpuscles tremendously, tone up the nerves and regenerate the system.

The terrific heat from scorching rays in mid-summer is highly concentrated in the artificial sun ray lamps, and it is very dangerous to use them except under the strictest medical supervision. Dark glasses to protect the eyes from the penetrating action of the ultra violet light are important.

THE HOARDING FEVER

On account of the many bank failures throughout the country, and the general fear that others may follow in the wake of those already closed, thousands of people are withdrawing their money from the banks in a quiet way and tucking it away in their strongboxes. A statement in the Commercial and Financial Chronicle ventures the opinion that more than a billion in currency has thus been quietly withdrawn from circulation.

We can well understand the fear that possesses people; but after all there are banks and banks, and it ought not to be a difficult matter to go to a bank and find out just what its position is, especially if that bank is doing business in the place in which the depositor happens to live. It may be the duty of the banks to frankly take their depositors into their confidence, and put all the cards on the table.

The truth is that the conditions of the banks in Santa Ana and Orange county are well known. Their complete financial statements are published regularly every three months, and in those cases where there has been a falling off in gross resources, there has been a very distinct gain, relatively, in liquid assets.

In other words, the banks in our community, and we have no doubt throughout the county, are in better shape to meet the demands of the depositors at any and all times than they were even four years ago. The directors of our banks have addressed themselves to producing this very condition. And while some may have a feeling that they may have overdone it, yet from the standpoint of the depositor, from those who have money to place in banks, we believe that they can feel a higher degree of security in so doing than even before the business depression struck us.

There is no surer way to continue the present depression, and even to add to its severity, than to doubt every institution because a few have been mismanaged, or seriously affected because of extremely bad local conditions. One of the surest ways to help business, restore confidence in every direction, and add to the security of your own property is to take your money, if you have it in safety deposit boxes or elsewhere hidden and not serving, and restore it to the regular vaults of the bank, so that it can be used through the natural avenues of trade in all departments of our business life.

THE NUMERICAL INCREASE OF FOOTBALL TEAMS

It is interesting to observe the growth in the number of men who are playing in intercollegiate football games. Last week no less than three Notre Dame teams were playing with teams from other colleges. The varsity squad was playing Drake University, surely not a formidable rival. Yet we are informed that "they" only took 57 men with them for that game. At the same time the "B" team and the "Reserve" team were playing in other cities. Ohio State was playing with Michigan, while its reserve team was also playing away from home.

Educators who believe that a college is an educational institution, are beginning to wonder what it is all coming to. And well they might. We are not averse to college athletics, but proportion is highly desirable. It takes time to become the kind of a football player who is to excel, and it is not easy to see how much time can be spared from academic duties as intensive training requires. Perhaps overdoing the business may be a good thing. The abuse of anything is the surest way to end it. In that way football may come to occupy its rightful place in college life.

AERONAUTICAL FIGURES

Tabulations from the Aeronautics Branch of the Department of Commerce, as of October first were announced the other day and reveal that California leads all other states in the number of licensed aeroplanes, and licensed pilots. The number of licensed planes in California is 957. New York state which is the runner up of California in these figures has 927. It has 1,200 licensed and unlicensed planes while California has but 1,175 aircraft in this grouping. The number of licensed pilots in California is 3,220, New York had but 1,811 and Illinois had but 1,121.

The last report of tabulations, prior to that of October 1, was July 1. A comparison of the figures shows that pilots increased 974 and aircraft 374, but the number of licensed mechanics decreased by 56, leaving a total of 9,110.

October 1 there were 476 licensed women fliers.

According to the study, California is in the lead with 261 licensed gliders and 114 licensed glider pilots.

All over the United States there were 6,722 transport pilots; 1,709 limited commercial pilots; 54 industrial pilots, and 8,757 private pilots.

It is not surprising that California and New York state are running close together in the number of aircraft and pilots for the same force of circumstances in both states exerts pressure toward the use of aeroplanes. New York has large cities throughout its breadth and California's two centers of population make rapid transportation a necessity.

ATTENTION ON MANCHURIA

As we feared, Japan has refused to accept the date for withdrawal of her troops from Manchuria. This will be exceedingly embarrassing to the League of Nations as they meet today to determine on their action. Probably before this reaches the readers, the League of Nations will have acted.

Dr. O. W. E. Cook, head of the department of International Relations at the University of Southern California, in an address yesterday in Santa Ana, declared that the war group, which had temporary control in Japan, he believed, was taking this very action to defeat the purposes of the disarmament conference this coming February.

It may be so. On the surface it looks extremely discouraging. Yet it may emphasize the necessity of the success of that conference to such a degree as to insure it.

If Stimson, Hoover and Laval can only rivet themselves to a disarmament program, and agree to take no action at Geneva that will interfere with its success, it may offset the damaging influence of Japan's attitude in respect to the settlement of the difficulties in Manchuria.

We have just received a dispatch that the council of the League of Nations passed a resolution for the evacuation of Japanese troops from Manchuria by the 16th of November, and recommended that China and Japan appoint representatives to arrange details over Japan's vote, the vote standing 13 to 1. Under the provisions of the League pact, however, the binding power of the council's action only prevails when unanimous.

Give Old Clothes a Job

Christian Science Monitor

"How long have you been hanging around these premises?" queried an old brown shoe to his neighbor, the blue serge suit, in the gloomy recess of a clothes closet where they had been consigned by their owner some months previously.

"More than a year," sighed Mr. Blue Serge. "The boss doesn't seem to like me any more. Of course, I'm a bit tight around the shoulders, but otherwise I'm as sound as a dollar. I really deserve a better fate than hanging on a hook."

"Same with me," added Mr. Brown Shoe sorrowfully. "I may look a little scuffed and worn, but I'm getting mighty tired of collecting dust in this closet. What I want is a saunter in the sunshine, some useful job and a bit of friendly consideration."

What Mr. Blue Serge had to say is not recorded, since the woman who heard the dialogue was called away just then to answer the rear doorbell. It was a man, and he wanted some cast-off clothing and shoes to put him through the winter, but the housewife said that her husband always liked to keep his old things.

Perhaps it might be well just now for every possessor of a well-furnished wardrobe to listen in on the conversation of discarded shoes, coats and trousers. Somehow the Old Clothes Brigade has heard of the needs of the many men and women out of employment, and is eager to march out of hiding and do what it can to help along, if a brisk command is given. Now seems the proper time for every householder to call the roll of the old-timers in the clothes closet, and then to send them out to the various social agencies and distribution stations where they may extend their comfort and usefulness for many months to come.

A New Fire Menace Found

San Francisco Chronicle

There is food for speculation and argument in the sequel to a report given the Fire Commission which argues that many early morning fires are caused by men attempting to cook the family breakfast. In the sequel the secretary of the Commission blamed the fires on the carelessness of the man cook, adding: "A man is not a natural cook and there ought to be a law to keep him out of the kitchen."

Many a bothered wife will agree that man's place is not in the kitchen—except, perhaps, when there are dishes to dry. And only a few, the lucky few, would rise to cheer hubby's cooking. Of course, every man believes he can cook. Some even try. Those who do have a stomachic champion in Mrs. Mary Prag of the Board of Education. Says she: "All the great cooks were men. A man cooks from instinct while a woman has to learn. A man cook is just as good as a woman cook. This is just another attempt by men to get out of cooking breakfast."

Mrs. Prag may have had some famous chefs in mind. That list includes no women. The controversy is young yet. The world has still to hear from the man who would rather burn down the house than cook breakfast. According to that report to the Fire Commission he exists.

Welcome to Our City

New York Times

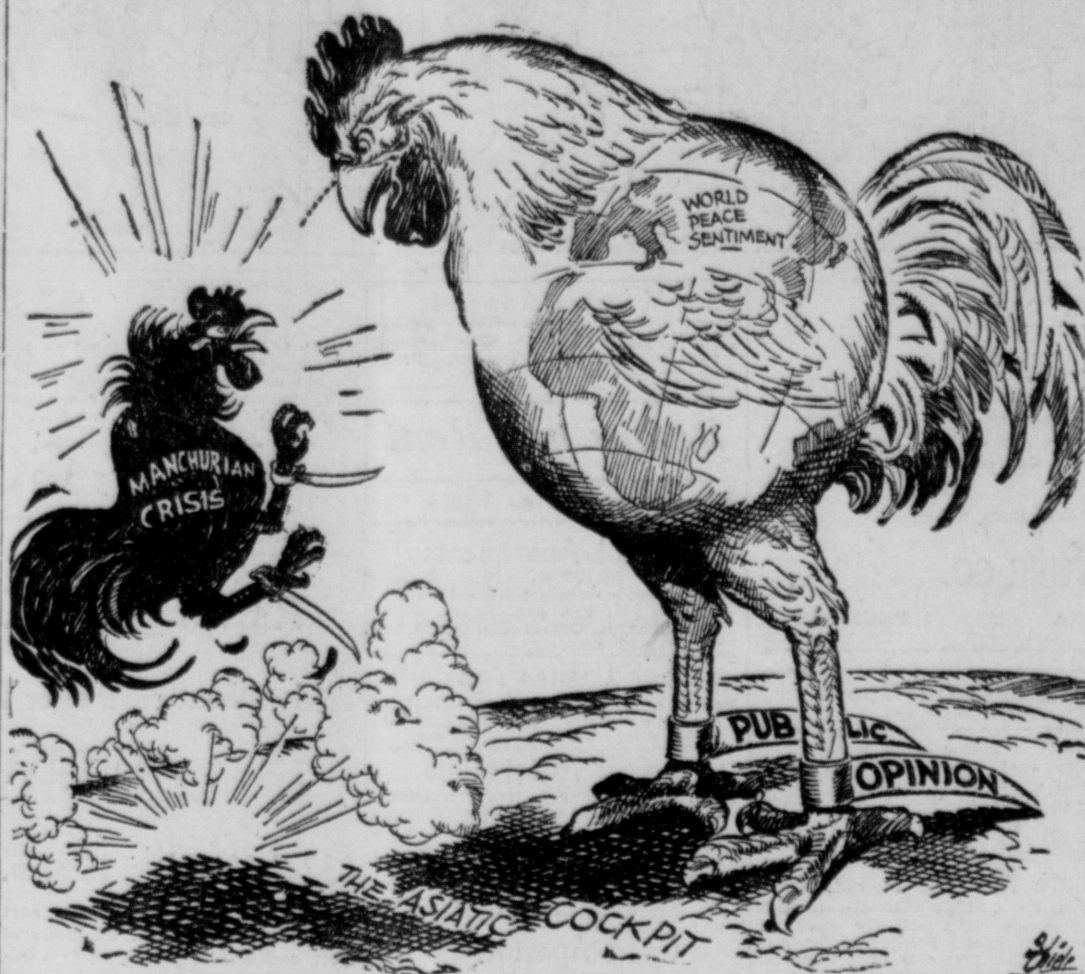

In summer all the writing-folk stream into Russia. But when snow begins to powder the steppes, and good food and central heating become more needful to the softly bred children of capitalism, the turnabout to the United States begins. Each ship discharges a couple of foreign celebrities, all of whom are duly interviewed about the skyline, American womanhood and the future of man.

Among the most engaging of these is Rafael Sabatini, sometimes called "the modern Dumas." He had never heard of Miss Guinan. He did not know how a romantic novelist, two hundred years hence, could make a colorful figure of Mr. Coolidge. He thought he had "dined" once at Rudy Vallee. He could not envisage Capone as a hero. Mussolini "is the most romantic figure in the world today."

Mr. Sabatini had no suggestion as to the future of man or the maintenance of the gold standard. As for the skyline, it developed that he could take it or leave it alone.

Very few Englishmen—for Mr. Sabatini is a British resident—have let us off so easily. At the opening of the season, when America is not permitted the privacy of a goldfish, it expresses gratitude to this visitor.

WHY WORRY?

The tadpole, when he learns how to swim,
Is destitute of any limb,

His youthful days must all be spent
Within his watery element,

But, presently, beneath the tide
He sends out legs on either side,

His tail drops off, his eyes bulge out,
More lazily he swims about

And presently sits on a log,
No more a tadpole, but a frog.

When caterpillars hatch from eggs
They have a lot of extra legs

On which they're forced to creep and crawl
Because they have no wings at all.

But soon their sides begin to bulge
And colored filaments divulge,

Which grow and grow, till by and by,
The grub becomes a butterfly

And spends the remnant of his life
Aloof from dull and mundane strife.

But we who rule this rolling sphere
Must die as we have entered here.

Throughout our lives we never change
To incarnations new and strange.

Yet we would not, on any terms,
Exchange with tadpoles, or with worms.

Uncommon Sense

INTEREST CHILDREN AND THEY WILL LEARN

When a baby discovers his toe he begins his education. After that his faculties are busy. He uses his eyes and ears with an industry which his father and mother might well envy.

And as he grows up, if he is given an intelligent answer to every question he asks, the teachers to whose care he must be committed by and by will have little trouble in interesting him in his studies.

It makes me indignant to hear mothers constantly say to their children:

"Don't ask so many questions."
Or, "Don't ask about things you cannot understand."

Often a child is able to understand a good many things better than does a mother or father whose intelligence has been dimmed by a lot of misinformation taught him by his contact with the world.

The teachers who are the most successful are those who know how to interest children in the branches they teach. Really good teachers are rare.

In my career as a schoolboy I had two. One was supposed to teach us chemistry, but knowing that to understand much about chemistry was impossible to youngsters of our mental development, she talked to us about other things related to chemistry, and at last managed to win some comprehension of that vast and complicated science into our heads.

If you have children never try to put them off with trifling answers when they ask questions.

If you do not know how to reply, look up the subject and find out. That will help the child, and also make them have a higher opinion of you, and that is something every parent wants his child to have.

Get them books about nature and its workings. They can read other books, even about Indians, without hurting them.

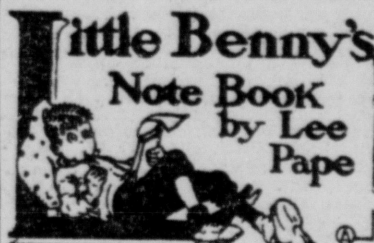

I must have read a hundred dime novels in my youth, and I never ran away to the West, nor did I ever want to be a train robber.

Always hear questions patiently. Sometimes those which seem most foolish to you, with your credulous habit of taking things for granted, may really be the most sensible and practical.

Do not treat a child as you would a pet dog or cat. Remember that it has an expanding intelligence, and that if properly fed that intelligence will grow and develop.

All parents who are not monsters love their children. But often they are impatient and intolerant with them, and that is one of the reasons the child soon stops asking questions of his parents, and thereby shuts off one of his most useful means of educating himself.

Ma is coming home from Aunt Fanny's, pop getting a letter from her saying, Dear Willyum, well its a long wife that has no returning, and Ill be in your mist again in a very few days.

To tell the matter down to a nutshell, I've decided that the world is not big enough to hold little Herbit and myself, at least as far as this house is concerned. The grand climax arrived last night at dinner when everybody at the table was greeted by a sardine in their glass of water.

Fanny as usual considered it a mark of intelligence in Herbit, claiming it proved his interest in wild nature and his love for dum animals, but somehow or other it spoiled my appetite and the platters mite as well not be passed around a 2nd and 3rd time as far as I was concerned.

In other words it was the last straw and I decided to tell Fanny at breakfast this morning that I very much regretted to have to cut my visit short, but I was urgently needed at home where I considered it my first duty to be in time of emergency.

Well Willyum before I had a chance to clear my vocal cords, Fanny coolly informed me that she expected her husband's mother and that she was afraid she would have to give her my room. In sure it was all a hatched up piece of fiction because Fanny resented my going out of my way to do her the favor of giving her a little clear cut daily advice on the general subject of how to bring up Herbit better.

Anyway, Willyum, I had sufficient presents of mind to come off with flying colors. What I calmly said was, Its very nice of you to feel that way, Fanny, but I really wish you would write to your mother in law and tell her its not necessary to postpone her visit on my account, but really and so forth and so forth just as I had planned to say in the first place, leaving Fanny practically speechless with nothing to say.

Your victoriously packing wife Pawleen.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By GLENN FRANK

THE FUTURE OF SOCIAL REFORM

If American industrialism, under the pressure of necessity, comes fully to realize that its survival depends upon its service to the masses . . .

If it sets consciously and comprehensively out to make available to the masses the leisure, the hours, the prices, the leisure, the security, and the self-respect which alone can make them a consistently dependable market for its multitudinous goods and services . . .

And if American liberalism continues to buck the historic process by trying to legislate America back into the small-scale-enterprise economy of the nineteenth century . . .

We may, as I suggested the other day, see a surprising shift in the relative positions of the reformers and the reactionaries.

The formerly conservative captains of American industrialism may become the most potent agents of mass-benefitting social reform, sound in its humanitarian emphasis but obscure in its practical politics of socio-economic adjustment.

America has moved definitely out of the age of a small-scale-enterprise economy into the large-scale age of a machine economy. The machine economy is a magnificent, but a hitherto misdirected social instrument.

The strength of American industrialism has been its frank acceptance of the inevitability of the large-scale-ness of the machine age; its weakness has been its tardy recognition of the fact that a machine economy cannot survive save at the price of making the welfare of the consuming masses its first concern.

The strength of American liberalism has been its unwavering insistence that the industrial system must serve humanitarian ends, its weakness has been and is that, at heart, it has never quite accepted the inevitability of the large-scale-ness of the machine age.

Liberalism still looks wistfully over its shoulder at the age of the small-scale-enterprise economy.

Its effectiveness in the crucial quarter-century ahead will depend upon its catching step with the forces of historic inevitability that make and move the machine age.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

WORK FOR CHILDREN

"Why do you talk about teaching children to work with their hands when you know the world is being filled with machines that do away with handwork?"

For several reasons. The first one is the child's right to work. I believe that work is the greatest gift in life. If a man, or a woman, has work he likes to do, he is happy deep down. He may have troubles, but as long as he can work happily they are only surface things that soon pass over. Children have a right to know how to work at the job they like best. That is why I would have them taught to do some sort of work in school.

Scatter opportunities for work all over the school curriculum and each child will find something that is his.

I am not interested in making the child self-supporting, entirely. That is essential, but it comes much later than school life. The school is to offer work that interests the child at his stage of growth. Throughout his school career his work should advance with his growth, experience and training being the stimulants for growth. Intelligence expands and takes on quality and power by experience. Actual doing is what creates power. The child who reads about making an airplane gains something, but the child who makes one after reading about it, gains everything.

Working to a standard of excellence is the best kind of discipline. The time when a child who sat with folded hands and still tongue for five or six hours a day was called "perfect" has gone by. Goodness that stayed still in one spot didn't get very far and success has a habit of beckoning from a distant horizon. The perfect child has been shelved and the active, alert, noisy one who does things has taken his place. The schoolroom of today is not so still the teacher can hear the clock tick. Growth is an activity and that spells work.

I have no fear that machines will do away with the need of skilled hands. The machine will never be able to turn out work that can compete with handwork. Put a chair that has been made in the factory beside one that has been made in the shop of the skilled cabinet maker or woodworker and you will feel the difference at once. Your hands will go out to caress the hand-made one every time.

People will always want the lovely things that are the works of men's hands. The skilled handworker will always command a high place in the working world. The more machine work we have the higher value we place on the things made by hand.

Teaching a child to work well with his hands makes him independent. It makes him intelligent. It gives him occupation of mind and body in his leisure time. It offers him an opportunity for earning his living in the field he likes best. It makes good citizens. Busy hands make light hearts and light hearts bring beauty into everyday living. There are many reasons for teaching children to work and none for not doing so.

OUR GREATEST NEED.

TAMPA, Fla.—The Bank of Tampa closed January 19, 1911, and J. A. Griffin was appointed receiver. Today he filed his final report, showing all depositors had been paid the full amount of their deposits and 8 per cent interest besides. After all that was done, a balance of $3095 was left. This was paid over to the state treasury.—(Press dispatch).

Granting the truth of the foregoing, and far be it from this writer to question the truth of any assertion made upon such authority, we see or think we see a remedy for the "depression" we have heard so much about of late.

Here is a case of a bank which became insolvent years ago and has since been in charge of a receiver. Now it pays off all depositors with interest on all deposits at eight per cent and has money left. As this money was handed over to the state treasury one takes it for granted that the stockholders were first settled with.

Our banks are perfectly solvent. As a rule they have more money on hand than at any previous time. And they pay, at least the savings department of the banks pay, four per cent interest to depositors. Why is this then? A solvent bank and, praises be, our banks are in that happy condition, can pay but four per cent interest on deposits while an insolvent bank can and does pay eight. Can it be that our greatest and most pressing need at this time is more insolvent banks? You tell 'em.

So it would be supposed that the celebration of a glorious and decisive battle in American history would be no reason to give offense to our broadminded, patriotic, and liberty-loving English cousins.
